Three in contest for two city council seats

By NANCY HILLS

AN INCUMBENT, the chairperson of the planning commission, and a former president of the Carmel Residents Association are the three candidates vying for two Carmel City Council seats.

When councilmember Bob Fischer, planning commission chairperson Carla Ramsey and former CRA president Barbara Brooks wake up on April 11, two will be councilmembers and the third will probably be saying "Thank God."

The differences between these candidates are more subtle than those between the mayoral candidates.

Brooks, a retired teacher, decided to run, she explained, because "I have really invested my last four years to this town. I came to walk on the beach and in the forest and became involved. I have enjoyed going to the city council meetings and I started going to Carmel Business Association meetings when I first moved here. I enjoy the democratic process."

"I discovered no matter how well-prepared you are, and how often you speak, when you are in the audience, you don't have a vote," Brooks said.

Brooks said she has missed only four council meetings in the four years she has lived in Carmel.

For Ramsey, a real estate agent, the step to council is the natural transition from her years on the planning commission.

"I believe that I have the very necessary hands-on experience needed in city government because of four years on the planning commission. I feel we are entering a new decade and it is imperative that Carmel pull together to control its own destiny," she said. "On the practical side, when Elinor (Laiolo) decided to run for mayor and opened up a council seat, I was urged very, very strongly to run. I think the voters should have a choice."

Incumbent Fischer, first elected in 1986, has found the experience of being on the council both satisfying and fun.

"I think progress has been made in the past four years, it's been a lot of fun and I want to do it again," he said. "Most of the major issues have been settled — the beach restoration, the restrooms, Handley (R-4). Now is the time for fine tuning is the direction we are going in."

If one issue tops each candidate's list, it is the R-1 district design codes. All three have been involved in the current discussions to change those codes: Ramsey as a member of the planning commission, Fischer as a member of the council and Brooks as a member of the CRA and as an individual.

"What is built has to be in keeping with the neighborhood. I think it has to come down to square footage and making the houses smaller," Brooks said. "I definitely like the mandatory 50 percent open space."

Not only is open space needed for the ambiance of the residential district, it is needed to keep the forest growing and regenerating, she said.

"What we have got is a town full of old trees. We could lose our forest when those old trees go and there are no new ones. I think it is imperative to protect the intermediate growth trees," she said.

"I think the biggest issue facing Carmel," Ramsey said, "is residential design review. We are on the brink of making decisions in the R-1. First of all, it should be done with a great deal of care and study so the city isn't locked into something unworkable. I don't

Politicians compelled to rethink stands on Hatton Canyon Freeway

By DAVID LELAND

WITH SEVERAL lawsuits pending and the threat of additional litigation almost assured, political leaders are now being forced to re-examine their positions on the proposed Hatton Canyon Freeway.

Couple impending legal problems with increased public awareness and a 6-percent inflationary factor for construction costs, and a political booby trap begins to appear.

"I think everybody is cognizant that to pursue the ideal traffic solution is probably unrealistic at this point," said 5th District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman.

Strasser Kauffman, the remainder of the Monterey County Board of Supervisors, Caltrans and various county and state agencies have previously endorsed an ambitious plan by Caltrans to construct a road through Hatton Canyon.

Caltrans officials say they are only interested in a freeway that will solve the area's traffic woes for at least 20 years, but conventional wisdom now supports the widening of the existing Highway 1 to four lanes.

The Draft Environmental Impact Statement terms the widening as "Alternative Four."

In addition to widening the existing highway to four lanes from Ocean Avenue to Rio Road, the plan would provide left-turn channelization between Carmel Valley Road and Ocean Avenue, interchanges at Carmel Valley and Rio roads, widen the Carmel River Bridge and create an interchange at Carpenter Street.

Caltrans estimates widening the road will cost about $7 million. The Caltrans' alternative for a road through Hatton Canyon has risen from $23 million to almost $35 million in just over two years.

Moreover, the Monterey County Transportation Commission next month will be faced with determining if Caltrans' plan is "the most cost-effective" in the county in order to qualify for state funding.

That action comes as a result of recently adopted legislation demanding counties to look at projects whose costs have risen more than 120 percent since 1988.

'If they widen the highway, it's not going to be detrimental to the future of a road in the canyon. What we need now is a solution.'

— Jean Grace

"It looks like the people and the transportation commission will settle the matter," said Noel Mapstead, a staunch opponent of any construction in Hatton Canyon and one of those who has filed a lawsuit citing environmental concerns.

Money for construction of a freeway through Hatton Canyon has been set aside by the state for a number of years, but there is some concern that the money could not be moved laterally from one project to another.

But any project approved within the final EIS would be able to use those funds, according to Nady Morshad, staff director for the state Transportation Commission.

Moreover, each county is allotted a minimum of $67 million for each five-year period from the state for transportation issues.

Military livelihood

Dear Editor:

I read with interest your article on Carmel's opinion of the closing of Fort Ord. Tell me, has anyone asked someone from Fort Ord or surrounding area whose livelihood is the military? Do they know how many people rent here, shop here, dine here, and yes, even have visiting family stay here?

I thought not. These are people of all ranks and income. They love Carmel and are proud to say they live near here. I have the feeling we all might as well be on the moon.

Eloquent students

Dear Editor:

We all were so very proud, and impressed with the Carmel High School students and their science teacher Richard Fletcher. They put so much time and effort into their EIR reports, some 70 or so pages. They listed all the living creatures and plants that live in Hatton Canyon. I hope they send copies to Washington D.C.

Their work really was for all of us. They want Caltrans, and all of us to really be aware of our living neighbors. Their young spokesman, who so eloquently reminded us that the generations following us must live with our mistakes as well as Caltrans' mistakes.

Yes, we too, hope that Hatton Canyon, a very special habitat on our planet, will be here for the children and grandchildren of these young people to enjoy as they do.

Carmel-by-the-Sea, the Sierra Club and Monterey County should present these fine young people, Sean, Stephanie, Will, John and Melonie, as well as their excellent science teacher, Richard Fletcher, a very special award.

Permanent solution

Dear Editor:

The eloquent and sensible letter by Woody Salmonson in last week's Pine Cone speaks, I am sure, for many on the peninsula, in Carmel Valley, and down the coast, who have been waiting patiently for Caltrans to be allowed to proceed with the Hatton Canyon freeway.

The roadblocks that are continually erected to divert and delay this badly needed project are appearing more ridiculous as time goes on. Public patience with the smog-producing traffic jams will someday run out, and the politicians, who seem to be wavering all over the place, will surely hear about it.

The problem requires a permanent solution, not a partial one, so let's get the amateur traffic experts out of the way and allow the real engineers to get on with the job.

Historical inaccuracies

Dear Editor:

During the past year, a series of rather presumptuous articles and letters by local history buffs declaiming against historical accounts of the beginning of Carmel Valley's post office in 1889 have culminated in the most recent diatribe by Barbara Marks, using the inaccurate historical conclusions of postal historian Rick Wilkerson to impugn the integrity of local historians who recommended that Carmel Valley residents celebrate a centennial last year based on the opening of the Valley's first post office.

As one of those historians who used photocopied documents from the Postal Service archives in Washington, D.C. in my published history of the U.S. Post Office in Carmel Valley in 1889, I'd like to express my resentment against the stated and implied slights against my character and the support which local, establishment-oriented newspapers have shown for these unprofessional revisionists of history.

Barbara Marks has produced no historical evidence or research of her own to substantiate her extravagant claims of untruthfulness and lack of integrity on the part of historians who don't agree with her. Mr. Wilkerson, who has researched the subject, contradicts himself in his own published postal history in the December 1968 issue of "Noticias del Puerto de Monterey" which states that Carmel Valley's first post office was indeed located deep in Carmel Valley in 1893, where he himself calls it the "Carmel P.O."

Since we all agree that the Carmel P.O. in 1893 was located 14 miles east on the Valley Road, where Joe Hitchcock, Jr. himself also remembered it as a child, why didn't Mr. Wilkerson bother to explain in his lengthy article in The Herald how it could have been located at Point Lobos in 1889, then allegedly moved to Carmel Valley by 1893?

To substantiate his contradiction with federal postal records, Mr. Wilkerson relies on an erroneous report in a Salinas newspaper, a report whose existence is surprising since no issues from that October-November date survive in the Monterey Peninsula newspapers of that era. The Salinas Weekly Index report was probably guesswork, a deduction from the fact that Antonio Nunes was a part owner of a saloon located at Point Lobos.

Mr. Wilkerson's side further contradicts itself in the published assertions of an editor of a California postal publication which agrees with us that the Carmel Post Office was located in Carmel Valley in 1893, but ironically concludes that the omission of any notice in an esoteric postal publication of that time mentioning any Carmel P.O. in 1889 proves that it never commenced operation anywhere, despite notations to the effect that it was "discontinued" when the postmaster neglected to file periodic reports.

Mr. Wilkerson and his publisher friend, regardless of their differences, obviously couldn't imagine that the "Daily Postal Bulletin" depended on the filed reports of postmasters for its listings, and since Antonio Nunes neglected to file his reports — leading to the Carmel P.O.'s closure in 1890 — the "Daily Postal Bulletin" had no information about the Carmel P.O.'s existence.

This and many other historical inaccuracies in Mr. Wilkerson's article company and sometimes the left hand does not know what the right hand is doing. Now it does.

Three vie for two council seats

Ramsey suggested that perhaps a model of the residential district could be developed which could be used in planning and assessing the impact of different houses on neighborhoods and the entire town. Or the city could acquire one of the computer programs which simulate a completed home design for the planning department to work with.

All three have the same theme in mind — a new decade with many of the individual issues settled and the future facing Carmel.

"I think we don't know what we are trying to accomplish — where we are going with the commercial district, with the R-1 district. We need to set out where we are going on these issues," Brooks said. "I don't want to play the 'ain't it awful' game without some ideas of how to fix it."

Brooks said she sees both sides of the spectrum as bad — those who will let anything through and those that find any change bad.

"We are going to have to change," she said. "We are a part of the country and a part of the state of California and we share in their problems."

Deciding where Carmel is going is what Fischer said he sees as "fine tuning."

"We are going to have to decide what direction we are going in," he added. "Perhaps one of the places to start is in an organizational restructuring with the city itself. I was involved in the one for the fire department and I am very proud of that."

In the past few years, since 1986, Fischer said that the animosity between the residents and the business community has dissipated.

"I have had the opportunity to serve under two excellent mayors (Clint Eastwood and Jean Grace). I feel the political situation has been turned around to such a degree that there is a good more deal of input and involvement by everyone. There has been a relaxation of the tension between the businesses and residents — a warmer glow over all the city. I feel very positive."

"I think it is important that we all pull together on the whole on all problems," Ramsey said. "That is the only way it is going to work. I don't like this 'us and them' attitude."

Parking, an ever-present problem, also remains an sticky issue.

"We haven't solved that yet, and we're a long way from solving that," Fischer said. "I am still in favor of a parking structure at Sunset. I don't think shuttle parking is going to work. We need a major parking complex and Sunset Center is the only place to do that. It is the most logical.

"Some needs for parking have been met, but it is minuscule — extension of green zones, underground garage at the senior citizen housing complex."

"Of particular problem to the residents is the intrusion into the residential district of all-day parking," Brooks said. "I don't think that will change until affordable parking is developed."

Brooks said she would support a residential parking permit program that would allow only residents to park in the residential district, "only if we can say where those who are parking in the residential district are going to park."

"Wherever that is, it is going to have to be convenient and affordable," she emphasized again. "These little shop workers can't afford to pay much for parking."

Brooks said she is against a parking structure at Sunset Center.

"I would like to see satellite parking, but I don't want to specify where that parking should be right now," she said. "There are possibilities out of the city and within the city and we have to look at them."

Any solution, she said, will cost money.

"We cannot expect the employees to foot that whole bill," she said.

"I am going to be anxious to analyze the outcome of the hard-working parking committees. It will be interesting to see if they recommend several small parking facilities or areas rather than one large one," Ramsey said. "I would like to see the impact on the residential neighborhoods lessened. Residents themselves can't park in front of their own home, much less their guests."

Ramsey also sees possible problems with a decrease in revenues.

"I hear a real fear of revenues being down," she said. "This is real. We know that sales tax are down. Are we going to have to cut back on services, on the fire department and fixing streets? I think that is an issue — fiscal responsibility."

Buying open space is good, she said, if the city can afford it.

Fischer said that there is now a hiring freeze in the city until exactly what revenues the city will have is known.

"I think revenues will be down, but not to the extent people feared it would be. If it is necessary, we will just have to work with the personnel we have. I do not mean to release any, but just don't replace those we lose due to attrition."

Who will lead Carmel's culture into the '90s?

By NANCY HILLS

FOR THE first time in 13 years, Carmel is hunting for a new cultural director, with Richard Tyler's retirement made official last December.

The Friends of Sunset Foundation is sponsoring a public forum on the hiring process from 5 to 7 p.m. Friday, Feb. 16 in Carpenter Hall at Sunset Center. Carmel City Administrator Doug Schmitz will speak for about 20 minutes and then there will be time for questions from the audience.

"We really feel there hasn't been a dialogue open to the public about how important this decision is. It is one that will determine the character of Carmel for the next decade. We are approaching this forum from an education standpoint. We are not proposing backing any candidate. We just want them to hire the someone who can get the focus back to Carmel in regards to culture," explained Jean White, president of Friends of Sunset Foundation.

Schmitz has the ultimate responsibility of hiring the cultural director, technically called the community and culture department manager. Since October, when Tyler announced his resignation, Schmitz has talked individually with representatives of cultural groups about what they would like in a new director.

"I wanted to get their input on the process and the professional qualifications they would like to see in a new director," he said.

Generally, he said, the recommendations have been for a person who is familiar with a wide variety artistic media, knowledgeable of public relations and can serve as a good administrator.

The $3,404 (starting) to $4,136 a month (maximum) salary position has been advertised across the nation and the application deadline is March 15. Rumors place the number of interested local parties at about 18.

Schmitz said that he will set up groups from the cultural community and the community-at-large to advise and assist during the selection process.

The city's job description for cultural department manager states that he or she works under the administrative direction of the city administrator and plans, programs, oversees and administers city-sponsored cultural activities while supervising a small staff.

The cultural department manager also has the responsibility for "the appropriate use, maintenance and repair of a large culture center and making available a variety of cultural activities in the community."

Listed examples of the duties include:

- Overseeing public relations with the community, including promotional material for events;
- Securing appropriate tenants for portions of the facilities;
- Developing departmental budgeting, record-keeping and grant applications;
- Working with the community and cultural commission and preparing their agendas.

Qualifications sought include knowledge of theater lighting, sound and acoustics, various cultural and artistic media and performing arts, modern management techniques, grant writing and physical maintenance and upkeep of a facility.

PERSONALLY, WHITE said, she would like the new cultural director to be "someone who is well-rounded, not just promote or pro-theater or pro-art, but has the total picture in mind."

That is a sentiment shared by other members of the cultural community.

"It has to be someone who has almost a Renaissance personality," said Basil Allaire, chairman of the Carmel Bach Festival. "Sunset Center offers things from the most gifted of composers like Bach to the most gifted of athletes like someone who can lift the heaviest weights."

"We need an administrative type, somebody who has a lot of experience in those fields, but also somebody who has a good background in the arts," he said, but cautioned, "We don't want somebody with a MBA (Masters in Business Administration), who knows nothing about the arts."

Since the center and culture encompasses a wide variety of people, Allaire added that the new director will have to be a diplomat, "who can handle everybody."

"It should probably be someone that has a wide knowledge and expertise in all performing fields — art, music, drama and dance — not in just one area primarily," said Peter DeBono, chairman of the Monterey Peninsula College Theater Department.

Tyler himself said he believes the new director needs to have the ability to communicate well verbally and in writing, have a good booking background, be a good administrator and be able to get along with diverse groups of people.

"I had a background in music, arts, and drama when I arrived here for the job," Tyler said. "It was a real help."

The ability to keep a good set of books and do some accounting is also important, he added, since that is a large part of a department head's responsibilities.

Spearheading an upgrade of Sunset Center is another aspect of the job that many cultural groups have on their minds.

In that area, the community and cultural department manager, Schmitz said, is the "sparkplug" that brings ideas and plans for improvements to the facility before the cultural commission and ultimately the city council.

"I think the facility itself has to have a master plan to make it the best it can be if we wish to keep drawing an audience," White said. A master plan does not necessarily involve the expansion of the theater from its current 730 seats.

Nana Faridany, Bach Festival administrator, said despite rumors to the contrary, the festival is not really interested in moving to a bigger theater.

"The theater size is ideal for our repertoire. I think we are at home here. Sometimes we would like to sell a few more seats, but the trade-off is not worth it. The music (of the festival) is designed for a small theater," she explained.

Allaire agreed.

"Our music is actually for an intimate gathering," he said.

Another group that is usually cited as wanting a bigger stage or facility is the Monterey County Symphony. Michael Winter, the symphony executive director, explained the problem they have is not the size of the stage but the archway framing the stage.

"The proscenium blocks the sight and sound of portions of the orchestra," he said.

He added that in the future, the symphony's office space may become an issue in the future. It currently rents an office in Sunset Center and may need some changes in two or three years, Winter said.

"I hope any new director will give priority to the needs of the primary users of Sunset Center such as the Bach (Festival) and the symphony," he said.

Now, Winter added, the symphony's relationship with the center is satisfactory.

"We feel well-treated," he said.

J.D. Clinton, president of the Chamber Music Society of the Monterey Peninsula, explained that he would like to see improvements in the room backstage, a common concern of all the groups that use Sunset Center.

Room Nine, as it is called, is where the performing artists change and entertain. It still looks like a run-down classroom.

"It is not very pleasant looking, just an old schoolroom," Clinton said.

Of equal importance is the ability to be a good facility administrator, he added.

"I don't think (groups like ours) need a cultural director so much as a cultural center director. Cultural director implies he gives us, or the symphony, or the Carmel Music Society direction but we are separate programs that do our own scheduling and only rent the center for performances," he said.

She added she hopes that they will continue taking care of the building and "improving all the nooks and crannies."

Beyond the physical side of Sunset Center, cultural people are interested in some expansion of the center's offerings.

Faridany said she would like to see more theater performances at Sunset Center, overall, and would like someone who has a sense of Carmel's history in the arts.

"It could be someone who has researched it," she added, but that person has to care about the the long tradition of culture and arts of Carmel.

"There is so much commercialism now, it seems to get in the way of traditions of the past," Faridany said.

"Obviously, I think it should be someone who has clearly has the arts — including the visual arts — as a priority or interests are in arts rather than recreation," she added.

DeBono agreed that the theater should stay at Sunset, but as most people interviewed by the Pine Cone he did not feel that there were many areas that the arts were lacking attention in Carmel.

"Of course, I would like to see the theater element maintained," he said. "But there are no holes. I think Richard Tyler really did a good job bringing in many groups. I think it's pretty varied right now," he said.

"We want someone who can get a focus back to Carmel in regards to the cultural community," White said. "Someone for all our facilities, the outdoor theater as well, someone who can get along with all groups. (The cultural director) wears many hats."

Planners defend choice to muzzle citizen committees

By DAVID LELAND

MONTEREY COUNTY planning officials this week defended a decision that severely limits public input by the area's citizen advisory committees.

The move, they say, is a necessary one, and should be a thing of the past by June 1.

"To be able to promote a modicum of service to the public, we had to get some work off the planners' desks," said Dale Ellis, zoning administrator, referring to a list of 20 remodeling projects that will no longer be reviewed and forwarded to planners by any of the area's 17 advisory groups.

Ellis said that the planning department is down to 10 staffers, from a high of 25.

Projects no longer receiving advisory committee input include plans for fireplaces, roofs, additions to homes of 10 percent of existing floor area, small accessory structures, fences, gates, color, hot tubs and decks.

"This measure could be devastating," said 5th District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman, a staunch supporter of the groups. "The whole tone of a neighborhood can change if unacceptable buildings appear on a street."

She added that advisory groups are especially important to her district, which includes Carmel Valley, Carmel Highlands and Big Sur, because projects there are mostly remodels and very little new construction takes place.

Ellis said plans not being examined by advisory committees will still be scrutinized.

"They'll still be reviewed by staff, it's not just a carte blanche rubber stamp," he said.

Ellis blamed low salaries for the exodus of the planning staff, many of whom are migrating to large cities where the pay is higher.

Further vacancies occur when the remaining staffers are asked to take up the slack and pressure created too much work.

In addition to alleviating citizen advisory committees, the planning department has cut its hours at the front counter by a total of four hours a day.

New hours in the Salinas office are 10 a.m. to 3 p.m., as opposed to 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. In the planning office in Monterey, planners are available from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Thursdays, with Tuesday's hours being phased out.

Strasser Kauffman said there is no way that planners can make an informed determination without visiting the neighborhoods.

"The people who know the area best are those that move about it night and day," she said. "They are our shock troops alerting us to potential problems. Three months could add up to some real disasters."

SEVERAL ADVISORY groups expressed shock at being erased from the planning process, even if it is only temporarily.

"Now we can be of even greater help because now they can't go out on inspection," said Barbara Raines of the Highlands-Bixby Advisory Committee. "Walls and fences in the coastal zone can be real problems, as can a guest house."

Her sentiments were echoed by fellow member Richard Stokes.

"If they're so short-staffed, why do they dispense with volunteers who can help them?" he asked.

Strasser Kauffman said the informal setting in which advisory committees are conducted actually saves the planning department time by addressing issues before an application is processed.

Without a Monterey County Planning Commission agenda, it will be impossible for residents to keep track of changes planned for their area, complained Stokes.

"It doesn't allow for public discussion," he said. "The county is not going to call us up and say 'Tomorrow we will hear about a little two-bedroom house in Otter Cove.' "

Further up in Carmel Valley tempers were not as frayed.

"I don't think we think this is the end of the world," said Ruth Pryor, Upper Carmel Valley Advisory Committee.

Pryor said her committee will draft a letter to the county saying that additions and accessory buildings should still be reviewed by her advisory committee.

Pryor's fellow advisory committee member, Jason Wachs, took somewhat of a harder stance on the developments.

"I'm personally very concerned about losing control over some of these issues," Wachs said. "Color is extremely important when you talk about hillside construction."

Meanwhile Strasser Kauffman said she will bring the matter before the board to have the ruling rescinded.

Advisory committees are not legal bodies and are not contained in any county ordinance. Thus, they may be eliminated with little fanfare.

"It's not a matter of being angry," Raines said. "I just don't feel it's fair to the public."

Clarification

AN ATTORNEY for John Murphy, owner of Little Horse Ranch, told The Carmel Pine Cone this week that her client has no objections to carrying out an erosion control plan for the land.

Murphy and the county have been at odds since the Monterey County District Attorney's office filed a lawsuit against him in December of 1988 for allegedly grading roads on his land.

It was reported in The Pine Cone that Murphy was appealing the county's ruling for an erosion control plan.

"From the beginning he has attempted to get permission to do erosion control work," said Susan Dauphine, Murphy's attorney. "Obviously there is some disagreement with what needs to be done."

County Zoning Administrator Dale Ellis posted a stop-work order on the project after Murphy began implementing his own plan, a portion of which is contained in the county's permit application.

The '70s portend radical changes for Carmel

BY SUSAN BECK

IN DECEMBER 1970 the Pine Cone asked for opinions on how Carmel would fare during the next decade. Richard T. Wilsdon said, "With dedication and luck, Carmel will survive the '70s."

Surviving was not enough. After the turbulence of the '60s, Carmel got religion. Just existing wasn't going to get it. The community took a deep breath and looked to the future. A conscientious effort was on the horizon to establish an enduring "quality" place to live. "Environmentally sensitive" was the key phrase and the backbone philosophy that shaped the '70s.

Everything and every-creator was sacred. In the first year of the new decade the Pine Cone ran a story on the organization Friends of the Sea Otters, who were against a bill authored by Sen. Donald Grunsky that would give the state Fish and Game Commission power to manage the sea otter within the 75-mile refuge off the coast.

The newspaper printed a full-page picture with a caption that read: "Otters need all the friends they can get," alongside an opinion by Judson Vandevere, naturalist at Point Lobos State Park who was doing full-time research on the California sea otter. Referring to Grunsky's bill he said, "Their philosophy is that any managed species is not supposed to cause any conflict with a commercial resource. The otters are supposed to co-exist within a prescribed refuge as if they were Indians confined to a reservation."

Baby seals made friends too. Like Ralph, the baby seal later discovered to be Raquel, who was found underweight and gasping for breath on Carmel Beach, prompting beachfront dwellers to come to her aid. Thanks to a San Francisco dermatologist and several trained volunteers, she became fat and feisty, recovering swiftly.

The seawater that these creators were living in and the fresh water that the rest of us used became a major source of concern.

"Carmel has sidestepped the real issues," said Dr. Welton Lee, the director of the National Science Foundation. The most ambitious and authoritative investigation of sewage pollution within Carmel Bay was taking shape. Lee suggested a "...full reclamation and a solution to the problem of pollution once and for all...A very important point, though, is that the area we're polluting the most — with hard pesticides, with sewage, with all of our wastes, with anything we don't want — turns out to be the continental shelf areas. When we talk about farming the sea, and utilizing the sea for the production of more protein, the area we're talking about is not the vast, open ocean. The area we're talking about is the continental shelf."

The Monterey County Health Department started checking septic tanks in Carmel Valley to determine if any were polluting the Carmel River. The supervising sanitarian for Monterey County, Walter Wong, told the Central Coast Regional Water Quality Control Board that high coliform counts were recorded in the Carmel Lagoon. High coliform counts indicate the presence of other bacteria that can cause disease, particularly typhoid and hepatitis.

Schull, a new member of the Carmel Sanitary District board, proposed the setting aside of an 850-foot wide floodway at the mouth of the Carmel River superimposed on the site of the Odello artichoke fields. Schull wanted the Odello property to be set aside for a wildlife preserve and for "general recreation."

The Odello artichoke fields were soon to be a memory. Disease was the biggest problem. The Odellos lost 40 percent of their crops in '70 because of worms. The taxes and the possible closing of Southern Pacific added to the necessity of letting the fields go. The property's future was uncertain.

Patriarch Bruno Odello said, "People tell me they hate to see the fields go. I tell them, 'why don't you get a whole group of people together and buy some of the property, and then you can tell us what you want us to do with it. We could put in beans or whatever you want.' We'd be happy to do it...but nothing ever develops."

Over strong protests and more than two years of intense public controversy, reports, and opinions, the Monterey County Board of Supervisors approved the Carmel Lagoon Reserve Development Project, which called for construction on the 137 acres of the Odello ranch.

Construction of 298 condominiums and a 300-room resort hotel would probably start in 1974. Fields to the west of Highway 1 were to be left in open space, for acquisition as a "reserve" by the State of California.

Big changes in store for Carmel

JUST DOWN the highway from the artichoke fields is Point Lobos. In 1971 the Point Lobos State Underwater Reserve Expansion Study proposed expanding the reserve and creating an "underwater park."

The Carmel City Council strongly urged the state to take immediate steps to preserve the natural environment of Point Lobos. They feared the reserve could be turned into a "Coney Island," and Mayor Barney Laiolo said the proposal implied the possible use of things such as glass-bottomed boats and mechanized vehicles.

No less a figure than Jacques-Yves Cousteau, the famed French underwater explorer who made oceanography a household word, wrote State Parks and Recreation Director William Penn Mott. He said that the bay's ecosystem was "limited in size and thus very vulnerable. In fact, there are preliminary signs of possible degradation. It badly needs protection."

The Alliance to Save Our Coast, a group of Monterey County residents and organizations supporting Proposition 20, the coastal protection initiative, announced that 9,000 citizens of Monterey County signed an initiative to put the proposition on the next ballot. More than 400,000 voters throughout the state signed the petition.

Alliance chairman Kenneth P. Wood of Carmel Meadows said, "The fate of our scenic California coastline should no longer be at the mercy of piecemeal developers and numerous uncoordinated local agencies. It is one ocean, one coast, one common heritage."

The drought in 1974 forced City Forester Greg D'Ambrosio to shut off almost all of Carmel's landscape watering. Wash-off pads for surfers at the beach felt the pinch. If it were to continue the city would lose a significant number of its trees. One bright spot of the peninsula's drought was that the recycled water would soon be used. According to Walter Wong, head of the Monterey County Health Department, the door was open to the reuse of the two million gallons of water Carmel Sanitary District dumped daily into Carmel Bay.

A Pine Cone editorial on the water crisis opined, "Water is not only central to our daily lives, it is also a crucial part of many livelihoods. The city's charm and character are shaped to a great extent by surrounding vegetation, or what we commonly refer to as our 'living forest.'

"Now we are faced with the prospect of losing some flora because outside watering is becoming a luxury we can no longer afford. Visitors flock here because of the great natural beauty of this area and Carmel, more than others, depends upon visitors for the major part of its income. We can't afford to water and yet we can't afford to let too much of our plant life die back."

"It's especially encouraging to see so much involvement on the part of our citizenry in these times of stress. The countless hours many are sacrificing in an effort to find solutions to the water crisis will surely result in positive measures. And even more heartening is the fact that local business people are taking things into their own hands and making valiant efforts to conserve what water they can."

"The city is well on its way to aiding the effort by cutting out the amount of outside watering it does. All of these efforts should be applauded."

THE CONCERN for the peninsula's pollution, planning, and population took the limelight halfway through the decade.

In 1976 Earl D. Thorp of Carmel wrote a letter to the Pine Cone's editor about his idea of a creative theme for stopping pollution. He suggested, "...a nature agency pursuing a quality of life concept that acquaints the citizen with his roles as an environmental producer. Carmel can do better than ski resorts like Zermatt or literary havens like Davos, Switzerland. Why work as a traffic controller from a sanatorium image like that found in Thomas Mann's The Magic Mountain? Let us seek inspiration from Salomon's House in Sir Francis Bacon's New Atlantis.

"The people of the New Atlantis are 'partakers of the blessing.' They live in the 'Virgin of the World,' like Adam and Eve, where there is a 'Spirit of Chastity.' Four centuries ago, Bacon...pinned his hopes on the Monarch that financed the voyages of Columbus, and wrote about a school for the 'sons of science.' Unfortunately, he has yet to be taken seriously in Serra's Place."

In 1977 there were numerous articles on the proliferating restrictions, moratoriums, and interim ordinances and master plans with environmental impact reports in Carmel.

One article by David Cole said, "What is occurring...is the result of recent changes in both the laws and in public attitudes. Legal precedents give local governments more control over local growth. At the same time, the public has begun to realize that increased development and decreased taxes do not necessarily go hand in hand — often quite the opposite. In addition, the public often objects to the results of piecemeal planning."

A Pine Cone editorial on the restrictions said, "There's little doubt that wherever and however possible, the Monterey Peninsula will grow. Effective planning can help channel that growth properly for the benefit of all. But admittedly, at times it seems that what is done in the name of planning is just too much to bear.

"People in this area are controlled by city rules and county rules and coastal rules and state rules to the point where cries of over-regulation no longer seem so paranoiac. But there may be benefit to it all.

"Though the method seems harsh, the current flurry of interim, ordinances and building moratoriums may bring better ways of dealing with inevitable growth. That's what they were designed to do. For our part, we're willing to accept an extra bit of regulation if it will result in a better community for tomorrow.

"A lack of vision has helped destroy communities elsewhere by allowing growth to continue unchecked with little regard for the overall and long-lasting effects. We don't suggest a no-growth policy, but we do suggest that with the aid of our technology and human resources a plan for the future can be developed. Today we suffer from over-regulation, but let no one say tomorrow, that we suffered from a lack of vision."

Shirlee Alexander of Carmel wrote a letter to the paper's editor, saying in it, "It's hard for me to believe that you and I live in the same community. I have been following your editorials for weeks, wondering why you feel so threatened by our City Council. What is the 'permanent state of confrontation' that you, yourself, are creating?"

Alexander explained her faith in the community to foster healthy growth with the least possible environmental destruction. She suggested that the paper help channel the city's energies in a positive manner and provide equal time and space to those whose views may run contrary to the Pine Cone's.

Stands changing on freeway issue

A case could then be made for using money saved from the Hatton Canyon Freeway to fund projects such as the proposed Highway 101/Prundale Bypass.

"The money is there for certain projects that meet the criteria," Morshad said.

Fourth District Supervisor Sam Karas, who also serves on the county transportation commission, said he is prepared to go to the state capitol to secure funding if widening gains support.

"The name of the game is politics," he said. "You have to do a hell of a lot of lobbying in Sacramento."

EVEN IF the will of the people sways political leaders, state funding will not be available unless Proposition 111 passes this June, according to Assemblyman Sam Farr.

That measure would levy motorists with an extra 5 cents on each gallon of gas, and would rise to 9 cents a gallon by 1995.

Any revenue gathered from the tax would be used exclusively for transportation funding.

"We (state) don't have any money to match federal funds, neither will Carmel have any money to deal with internal roads, nor will the county have money for its roads," said Farr, referring to the imperative nature of the bill.

Farr, who has lobbied for Caltrans to listen to resident-generated design changes, has begrudgingly accepted current public sentiment toward widening.

"The traffic will end up in the (Hatton) canyon or the streets of Carmel," he said, referring to the idea that cars will soon stack up on Highway 1 after it is widened, forcing cars onto local sidestreets. "It's the community's choice."

Farr questioned whether an interchange constructed at Carmel Valley Road could ever be aligned with the county portion of the road near Carmel Rancho Boulevard, as is mandated in the Carmel Valley Master Plan.

Farr said he is certain that state and federal officials would not construct a short-term interchange at the road.

"The government does not like to do a project twice," he said.

Caltrans district director Tom Pollock told The Pine Cone that he is not surprised that widening has gained support in the community.

"I think it's been lurking in the background a long time," he said. "I think it's ironic that in 1972 that's what Caltrans wanted to do."

That was before Monterey County grew at such a rapid rate.

In the draft EIS, Caltrans says of the widening: "This alternative would provide minor capacity improvements but would not alleviate the crossing and turning conflicts. The identified transportation need would only partially be met."

Pollock said he worries that if the existing highway is widened "latent demand" will fill up the space. In other words, motorists currently using backroads or leaving for work earlier or later would travel Highway 1 after it was widened.

The widening "will not make Hatton Canyon Freeway go away as a possible solution," he said.

Pollock is not alone in his idea that a road through the canyon is the best alternative.

"If they widen the highway, it's not going to be detrimental to the future of a road in the canyon," said Carmel Mayor Jean Grace. "What we need now is a solution."

Grace has indicated that the Carmel City Council will come out in favor of widening by the time the county transportation commission meets March 7.

While she ultimately believes that an aesthetic road through the canyon could provide the best solution to traffic, constant delays, soaring costs and design concerns has prompted immediate action.

"It has become more and more apparent that Caltrans is not about to choose something that will be graceful in the canyon — to put it bluntly — more beautiful," she said, adding that it has only been in the past month that she has been convinced to support the widening alternative. "I feel strongly that we need to do something; we've got a backlog of traffic that needs to be removed."

Karas said he is endorsing widening because congestion presents a threat to public safety vehicles attempting to travel the congested road during weekends and peak hours.

"Widening may be the compromise solution that will allow this project to move forward," he said.

IF PLANS for a freeway through the Hatton Canyon are indeed scrapped in favor of widening Highway 1, development on the Monterey Peninsula will also have to be re-examined, according to Strasser Kauffman.

The supervisor said that could mean scaling down local area plans to accommodate increased traffic congestion.

The county insists that roads travel at a level of service that allows a smooth flow of traffic, all of the LUPs are based on the idea that the standard would be a freeway through Hatton Canyon.

Mapstead agreed with Strasser Kauffman.

"That's what we're saying: scale the land use plans down," he said. "They (Carmel Area Plan) have over 900 units scheduled for south of the Carmel River."

Mapstead added that the Carmel Valley Master Plan also is predicated on the fact that the proposed Hatton Canyon Freeway be constructed.

He charged that the county has dragged its feet because development is of prime concern.

"This (widening) is not a Band-Aid solution," he said. "It does not meet Monterey County's long-range planning goals. That's the bottom line."

Strasser Kauffman, who termed the Hatton Canyon Freeway as a necessary "large, heavy-handed solution," said county officials are more than willing to tone down growth, which has only recently surfaced in relationship to the Hatton Canyon Freeway.

"There has been a strong shift in terms of reasons for objecting to the Hatton Canyon Freeway," she said, referring to growth-

CALTRANS DISTRICT Director Tom Pollock said he expects that there will be a fight from those favoring a freeway through management issues. "That has occurred in the last three months."

She added that even with limited growth within the county, traffic will still increase because the bulk of cars on Highway 1 originates outside of the area.

"There's no question that we will have severe traffic problems in the future," she said. "The question is are we willing to live with those (if the road is widened)."

Locally, Strasser Kauffman said Carmel could face problems if the road is widened and its streets become even more crowded.

"If the City of Carmel decides to support a short-term solution, it will also have to be willing to change the way it advertises for traffic to come into the city," she said.

She cautioned against making any final decisions on the freeway until the final EIS, which is slated for an April release, becomes available.

Pollock said a cost-benefit comparison between the two alternatives will be presented at the March 7 county transportation commission meeting.

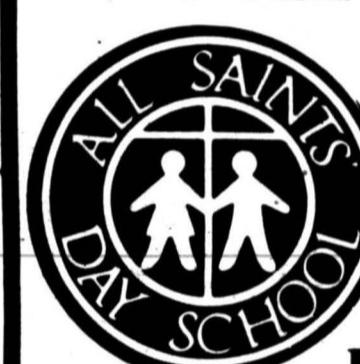

He also added that he expects a fight from those favoring the Caltrans plan.

"If we go to the existing alignment we will be faced with pressures to build the Hatton Canyon Freeway," he said.

Strasser Kauffman said it is imperative that there be some sort of melding of the minds concerning the freeway.

"The government will respond to the people," she said. "But the people have to be united."

Serra students DARE to learn about drug abuse

We've been takin' this DARE class, you and me. We're kids of the '90s we just want to be free. The main course of action is just to say "no," so just take a hike or plain gotta go. The date of graduation is almost here and Officer Rana has made it very clear: get rid of all these drugs in the USA. A good, clean straight life is the only way.

(Rap song composed by Junipero Serra School sixth-graders Gina Chappin and Sara Prestigiacomo.)

By DAVID LELAND

THE SETTING for drug abuse education is just as appropriate for the classrooms of Carmel as it is for the inner-city students of Compton — students of both locales need to stay off dope.

With that in mind, the Carmel Police Department recently completed its first semester of DARE at Junipero Serra School, a 17-week study on how to avoid the pitfalls of drugs and alcohol.

"The object of DARE is to teach children how to say 'no' to drugs while still respecting the rights of others," said Officer Steve Rana, who taught the curriculum to Lulu Brigham's sixth-grade class. "It's worked out very well so far."

The program works by building up the students' ability to feel good about themselves, while staying off harmful substances that may be offered to them by their friends.

"If your friends are taking drugs it's not good for you, because they don't know much if they are taking it themselves," said sixth-grader Gina Chappin.

Jenny Stone agreed.

"He (Rana) would show us what to say if your friend offered you drugs and you don't know what to say and you don't want to hurt their feelings," said the sixth-grader.

Each student taking DARE classes receives a 24-page workbook, with lessons concentrating on possible scenarios where children could be coerced into taking drugs.

Students also make up skits, write poems, perform rap songs and visit the police station before receiving their diplomas.

"Before I took DARE I thought that I could say 'no' to drugs and leave them alone," said sixth-grader Vera Schicketanz. "I learned that it's not that easy."

Students DARE to fight drugs

Subjects covered by DARE include varying ways to say "no" to friendly pressure and teasing, response styles and the myths of advertising techniques glorifying the use of alcohol and drugs.

"It (DARE) prepared us for our whole entire lives on how to say 'no' to drugs," said sixth-grader Sara Prestigiacomo.

'The object of DARE is to teach children how to say 'no' to drugs while still respecting the rights of others. It's worked out very well so far.'

— Steve Rana

— Carmel Police Dept.

THUS FAR, Serra School, the only school within Carmel city limits, is the only benefactor of Rana's expertise.

Any DARE class sponsored by Carmel police in the Carmel Unified School District would have to be done jointly with the Monterey County Sheriff's Department, which has jurisdiction over those schools.

In order to be certified as a DARE instructor, Rana underwent an exhaustive two-week training in Los Angeles, where the program was first launched by the Los Angeles Unified School District in 1984.

"I didn't know what DARE meant before I went to school," said Rana, adding that the instructor school had far-reaching implications. "In my 13 years of law enforcement, those were the best two weeks I've spent in my career."

"They wanted us to be constructive; it was also stressful — they wanted us to be perfect in how we teach."

As part of the curriculum, Rana ventured into a sixth-grade class in East Los Angeles to teach a segment of DARE.

"That was an experience in itself; those kids down there are just crying out for some help," said Rana, adding that students flock to him on the playground after the class. "The program gives them hope."

Locally the program is funded through donations from such organizations as the Rotary Club, as well as Serra School. Carmel police officials schedule Rana's time so he can teach the program to the sixth-graders, but he usually stays about an hour later chatting with students.

"I donate my time," he said. "I don't mind doing it; it's quite rewarding."

It turns out that the earlier students learn how to say no, the better luck they have of staying off of drugs.

"Before high school is the time to get them," said Rana, adding that Pacific Grove schools have had DARE in practice for about three years.

The idea is to build high self-esteem.

"He (Rana) always tried to make us feel better about ourselves," said John Davi. "He never criticized us."

"It (DARE) didn't teach us just about drugs," said Carolyn Smith. "It taught us

'It (DARE) didn't teach us just about drugs. It taught us about ourselves and that we shouldn't put each other down.'

— Sixth-grader

about ourselves and that we shouldn't put each other down."

The message is clear: just because Carmel is not the ghetto, doesn't mean drugs won't be offered.

"Nobody has asked me to use drugs yet," said Kristin DeMarie. "But if I get asked to use drugs, I'll know what to say."

"And what is barbarism, if not the failure to appreciate what is excellent?"

-Goethe

As a fellow reader recently defined 'culture' as "intellectual and artistic expression", and as my own dictionary* says that it also implies "enlightenment attained through close association with and appreciation of the highest levels of civilization", then what could be more barbaric than for a (pretentiously) cultured community to ignore the greatest intellectual achievement and cultural event in history, when it's right under your very noses?

Or to reject the means for creating a grand and eternal Civilization with an expansive and peaceful culture, and celebrating the triumph of the human spirit?

Food, glorious food!

IN THE MUSICAL, Oliver the hungry orphan plaintively sang of, "food, glorious food." A sad, wistful dream born of deprivation. However, "food, glorious food" is abundant on the Monterey Peninsula, prepared gloriously by our fine chefs and savored by many fortunate folk.

The International Wine & Food Society of the MP dines out periodically; the Friends of MIIS bring the best dishes of the fine home-chefs to their parties; and, it is only the best for the Hotel and Restaurant Association members. Seems that sometimes food goes from the idyllic to the adulterous. Ah, well, why not?

With the inspiration of Valentine's Day, what better way to the heart than via the stomach? Romantic hearts (and others), beat faster at the thought of a romantic and delicious array of alluring aliments. Besides, everyone knows that "diets ALWAYS start tomorrow."

All of those dear hearts of the Hotel and Restaurant Association who make the local social bashes flow smoothly, held "A Valentine Gala" for themselves at the Beach Club in Pebble on Sunday night. That is about the only time those talented chefs can leave their kitchens for even one minute.

With all of those connoisseurs of haut cuisine and other hospitality folk, there could be nothing less than "glorious food." Never mind. Those calories were quickly danced away to the music of the Cheeky Spanks band.

This was a party for members to mix and mingle because it is seldom these busy people are able to gather socially. Phil Lombardi (past president and award winner), was a spirited and humorous master of ceremonies. Russ Harris (outgoing prezzy), received the President's Award, an ice bucket, (which he was told he couldn't use because of the water shortage), from incoming president Mike Cassidy.

Those hospitality folks have their priorities straight. As Mike said, "The three things that matter most are: God, family and tourism on the Monterey Peninsula."

Mary Alice Cerrito (also past president), presented the very first "Purveyor of the Year Award" to Charles Chrietzberg and the seventh Hospitality Professional of the Year Award was presented by Dottie Surdi to a surprised and delighted Don Elisha (general manager of Asilomar).

You wouldn't think that the members of the hospitality industry would get as excited as the rest of us about winning a night or two at a hotel, a dinner here or there, or assorted bottles of wine, but they do.

Then it was on to serious dining, corn chowder, Carmel Valley greens, roasted Long Island duck and heart cakes by chef Olin Marcus. It was a lucky evening for 32 door prize winners, an evening of needed relaxation for the hospitable hospitality folk, and, a romantic Valentine evening for all.

The Wine & Food Society is not only dedicated to "glorious wine and food" but also to discovering new avenues of dining adventure and new dinner themes. Thus bringing original viands and victuals to its discerning members.

The Soviet Union startled the world this past year and the first W & F dinner of the 1990s, "An Evening With The Czar," made an impact as well. Hosts Leland and Gloria Dake came up with the idea and Brian Whitmer (executive chef of Highlands Inn), was the victualer in what turned out to be a combination of modern and classic Czarist sensuality. His "Consommé with Cabbage Packet" was a masterpiece of gastronomic delight.

Of course, everyone was ready for the excursion back into Czarist Russia after the epicurean pleasure of blinyts with Sevruga and salmon caviar, smoked sturgeon and salmon served with chilled Stolichnaya Vodka and Maison Deutz Champagne. These delicacies were served by a crackling fire in Russian fever had set in before diners entered the Surf Room to see a 19th century Samovar filled with tulips surrounded by a circle of candles on each table. Adding to the feeling of traveling back in time before electricity changed the Russian nights forever. Gloria said with a twinkling eye, "The samovars are filled with Russian tea that we will serve later."

FISHWIFE RESTAURANT owners Julio and Maria Ramirez attended the Valentine Gala with partner Jefferson Seay and friend Roxanne Regules.

READY TO partake of Russian food at the Wine and Food Society dinner were Kern Posey, Joyce Nicholas, and Dr. William McAfee.

We all know that Russian tea — the best in the world — is not allowed out to the rest of the world. We have to settle for second best — Darjeeling tea.

The colorful folk art painting by N. Lapshin of the Russian fairytale Sleeping Princess was on the cover of the menu printed in Russian and English. Christina Sever, administrative assistant in Russian Studies at MIIS, was the translator.

Monterey Opera rehearses

The Monterey Opera Association, Inc., has begun rehearsals for its next production, Dido and Aeneas. Choral openings remain for this production, to be staged in mid-June.

Interested singers are invited to join rehearsals, set 7 to 10 p.m. Mondays in Room M-10 at Monterey Peninsula College. For details, call 899-8494.

'The Ruling Class' screened

The Monterey Institute International Film Series will present The Ruling Class on Friday and Saturday, Feb. 16-17.

Peter Medak directed this 1972 release from Great Britain. A satire of the British upper classes, the film stars Peter O'Toole as an insane but harmless innocent. He inherits the 14th Earldom of Turney and is gradually indoctrinated into the wickedness of the titled rich.

The film begins at 8:15 p.m. in S.F.B. Morse Auditorium at the Monterey Institute of International Studies, 440 Van Buren St., Monterey. Admission is $4 general, $3 for students and senior citizens. For information, call 626-1730.

W & F Society president Dirk van der Burch continued the Russian spell by greeting guests with "Dobrie Vyecher" and "Dubro Plazhalavat." Host Leland Dake's toast was given in Russian also, "Za Vasha Zdarovye."

The first sit-down course was consomme followed by "Warm Salmon Croquette with Baby Lettuces" (sounds like the modern part). Then came roast boneless quail with delicious kasha and wild mushroom stuffing (the Russian part). On to loin of lamb, mashed potatoes, leeks and baby (?) carrots. Potatoes are a Russian staple to this day. The Russian dessert was "Port Stewed Compote of Winter Fruit with Honey & Yogurt with Almond Tuile." (the tuile by Bruno Feldeisen, patissier). David Fink, Paul O'Dowd and staff gave warm, elegant service worthy of Peter and Catherine the Greats.

Food dishes were explained by dinner chairwoman Gloria Dake and Brian Whitmer and wines by sommelier Myron B. McFarland, Jr. Dinner wines were Bourgogne Aligote Domaine Dubreuil-Fontaine 1987; Bourgogne Rouge Haut Cote du Nuits 1987 and Taylor Fladgate late bottled Port 1984.

At dinner I remembered the hearty beet and cabbage borschts, herring and sour cream and strudel that we ate in the Soviet Union, (long after the Czar, of course). Perhaps we will return for a third visit and check up on the foods served there now.

However, it was an evening I'm certain the Czar would have loved. It certainly was a treat for the Czars and Czarinas of the prestigious Wine & Food Society. "Spasibo" to Gloria and Lee.

Georgia von Richter always manages to find the best in the kitchens of the members of Friends of the Monterey Institute of International Studies and Lucille Huntington once again opened the doors of her home for the "My Funny Valentine" party. Of course, they were different doors and a different home. She has moved out of her lovely large Comstock estate in Pebble and settled in a sunny spot on Carmel.

Friends' vice-president, Peggy Compton, cooked up a few surprises for the Valentine party with special Valentines given to the party hostess, Lucille, and to Christine Armanasco, who headed the Orient Express Dinner/Auction.

ARTHUR AND Elizabeth Pasquenelli and Harlan and Barbara Hall sipped champagne in the Fireside Room at Highlands Inn before the "Evening with the Czar" dinner.

In recognition of her generous support of the MIIS Scholarship Fund, Virginia Burke was crowned "Queen of Hearts." Friends' president, T. Scott Moore, requested that Her Majesty present a $40,000 check to MIIS president Dr. Robert Gard.

MIIS trustee John Baldwin was a recent visitor to the USSR as a member of the Center for Soviet-American Dialogue. One hundred professionals in various fields met their counterparts in the Soviet Union to work out problems in these areas.

Mr. Baldwin returned with items for the "silent auction" table. A Russian fur hat with Red Army insignia that he purchased right off of a soldier's head (for American $$$ — no kopeks), a piece of the Berlin Wall, A Center of S-A Dialogue sweatshirt, a hammer/sickle clutch pin and a

OLOF DAHLSTRAND had faith in the city's tradition of "preserving the village."

Speaking to Carmel's planning commission in the summer of 1972 he said, "The city of Carmel feels one of the items of paramount importance is an equitable solution to the problem of population density. Environmental factors as limitation on the holding capacity should be considered. A holding capacity determined by saying 'there are so many acres of land, at so many units an acre' is not the true holding capacity, it's just a real estate calculation.

"The holding capacity must be determined by the ecological limitations of the area because the liveability and general quality of life is what's important. There should be no rush to develop this area."

All the best intentions for conserving the growth and preserving the environment of the '70s were slow to be realized.

In 1978 Bill Denholm, conservation chairman of the Sierra Club Ventana Chapter wrote a top ecology concerns article. He said that the chapter's 2,500 membership was stepping up its efforts to protect the environment, with special emphasis on the issues of the coast, wilderness areas, water, and growth management.

During the year prior the chapter had worked actively for a rational growth management program to preserve the quality of life on the peninsula as well as in Monterey County.

"It is a real misfortune for this area that the board of supervisors has so far resisted such a program despite growing public awareness of the high costs of uncontrolled growth," said Denholm.

Looking forward to 1979 U.S. Rep. Leon E. Panetta wrote a commentary for the Pine Cone. He said, "...all of us who live in Carmel and Carmel Valley should do some serious thinking about the magnificent attractions our area has to offer and the challenge of maintaining and preserving them. If we merely take for granted the clean air, open space and unique natural beauty of our region, we clearly risk losing these treasures forever."

He described the changes that the area had taken since his childhood, and said the pressures of progress showed no sign of diminishing.

"Faced with this reality, we who live here have a special responsibility to join together in planning sensibly for the future.... The challenge before us requires the direct involvement of every concerned citizen, and on a continuing basis. The preservation of our area's unique beauty must be our new year's resolution not only in 1979 but every year in the future."

CARMEL RIVER WATER NEWS

By Henrietta Stern

It's still a drought

WE HAVE received a few much-needed rainstorms in January and early February, for which we are quite thankful. After every rainstorm, people often ask me, "Is the drought over?" The answer is a definitive "NO."

One rainstorm (or even a few) does not end a drought. The water management district board has defined the drought as "being over" when our ground water aquifers in Carmel Valley are full and the Carmel River flows into the Pacific Ocean for at least 14 days. When these two events occur, the ordinance that limits water connections will also be repealed. So, many people are watching the skies for signs of rain.

EXISTING SITUATION

As of Feb. 8, the water situation has improved somewhat compared to last month. The two reservoirs at San Clemente and Los Padres are now full and spilling. Remember that the total storage of the reservoirs is only about 2,000 acre-feet, or 11 percent of total annual demand. Thus, most of our water supply is derived from ground water pumping.

The small aquifers in upper Carmel Valley (between the Scarlett Narrows and San Clemente Dam) are full. But our main source of supply, the aquifers in lower Carmel Valley, are still far from full; they are presently at 42 percent of capacity. However, the "wetting front" of the Carmel River is about one-half mile downstream of the Robinson Canyon Road Bridge, near mid-Carmel Valley, or about eight miles from the ocean. Most of the flow is percolating into the partially filled ground water aquifer, somewhat like tap water being sucked into a large, dry sponge in your kitchen sink.

A CLOSE WATCH

After each rainstorm district staff keeps a close watch on river flow and aquifer storage. We regularly monitor flow in the Carmel River at several points as well as tributary creeks flowing into the river. We also track the location of the wetting front and how rapidly the river is moving downstream (or upstream, if it's receding). A series of 40 monitor wells is also used to assess water table levels and ground water storage in our aquifers. Some of these wells are also used to monitor water quality throughout the year.

RAIN, RUNOFF AND FLOW

Where does Carmel River flow come from? It comes from runoff. Runoff occurs when rain falling onto the 250-square mile watershed (mostly in the Los Padres Forest) exceeds the ability of the forest soil to hold any more moisture. It literally

"runs off" down crevasses, arroyos and canyons into the nearest creek. Small creeks flow into larger creeks, which flow into the mainstem Carmel River. It might rain like crazy on the Monterey Peninsula proper, but if it doesn't rain in the watershed, the river won't flow.

PATTERN OF RAIN MATTERS

In these drought years, it's great to get rain of any sort. But how and when it falls has a significant impact on the amount of runoff that is generated. So, if we had our choice, we'd prefer a shorter, hard storm over a longer, light rain. For example, it's better to get 1/2 inch of rain in a six-hour thunderstorm than that same amount spread over two days as light rain.

Back-to-back storms separated by just 12 to 24 hours are more effective in generating runoff than the same two storms separated by a week of sunny weather. That's because the upper layers of soil dry out in the sun and wind following storms. When the next storm arrives, it must once again saturate the watershed soil before any runoff can occur. If the storms are back-to-back, there is little opportunity for soils to dry out — thus a greater percentage of the rain directly becomes runoff.

TOO MUCH OF A GOOD THING

Of course, a slow-moving front that provides one long, soaking rain is quite effective. However, too much rain in a short period of time is not desirable. A very heavy storm will send water rushing down the Carmel River, which could cause localized flooding. Because the aquifers can absorb only so much water per hour, a very rapid storm flow would "waste" into the ocean, and not percolate into the ground where we can extract it. In addition, if aquifers are not full, the river would quickly recede after a large storm pulse. Fish and other aquatic life would be stranded and die in pools as they dry up.

A WAYS TO GO

The Carmel River will not flow consistently into the ocean until the lower Carmel Valley aquifers are filled. Presently they are about 11,600 acre feet below full capacity. Assuming that the Feb. 8 rate of river flow at the Narrows continues, it would take about eight months (232 days) to fill the lower aquifers. (Remember, rain must continue to fall to sustain today's river flow.)

BRING ON THE RAIN

It's hard to predict how many inches of rain are needed to end the drought because so many conditions affect runoff. What we do know is our surface reservoirs are full, and any rain received in the next few months will move the river downstream and continue to fill our aquifers.

The perfect scenario would be several moderate back-to-back storms that recharge the aquifers, then speed the Carmel River to the sea. But this is a drought, and we're not picky about rainfall patterns. Bring on the rain in whatever form!!

Literary performances begin

For six consecutive weeks the Thunderbird Bookshop will present contemporary and classic literature and poetry in dramatic performance. Each performance begins at 7 p.m. on Thursday in the community room located in Thunderbird for Kids in the Barnyard, Highway 1 and Carmel Valley Road, Carmel.

Admission is $7.50 on Feb. 15 and $5 thereafter. Tickets may be purchased in advance at the Thunderbird Bookshop or at the door. No-host refreshments will be available during intermission.

The Thursday, Feb. 15 program is a Valentine Celebration. It features love poetry and stories performed by Ann Mattingly, Ashley Ramsden, Daniel Stokes and Taelen Thomas.

On Feb. 22, two one-act plays will be performed by Mattingly and Thomas. They are Ohio Impromptu by Samuel Beckett and The Birthday Party by Harold Pinter.

TAKE MY WORD FOR IT

By D. Patrick Gallagher

Separate but equal

FOR YEARS Americans in all parts of the country were prepared to accept a policy, which allowed for two cultures, one black and one white. The same conditions often existed in the North, as those familiar to the South.

However, while segregation in the North was a product of subtle discrimination, in the South it was official policy upheld by law. That policy had been endorsed by the U.S. Supreme Court in 1896 in a case known as Plessy vs. Ferguson.

Homer Plessy, a black man living in New Orleans, was arrested when he refused to leave the "whites only" coach of the East Louisiana Railroad. Mr. Plessy's act was a deliberate one, intended to draw attention to the official policy of discrimination extant throughout the South and to challenge that policy on the basis of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution, passed 30 years earlier.

In April of 1866, at the end of the Civil War, Congress passed the first Civil Rights Act, necessitated by the U.S. Supreme Court's earlier Dred Scott decision, in which the court had declared, in effect, once a slave always a slave. The 1866 Civil Rights Act granted equal rights to all persons born in the U.S., except Indians. It was passed over President Andrew Johnson's veto, who called it an unwarranted invasion of state's rights, and was struck down by the US Supreme Court as unconstitutional on the same basis. The court had not yet widely asserted the authority of the federal Constitution over those of the states' except in very select cases. In response to the court's action, Congress wrote, and two-thirds of the states passed, the 14th Amendment.

The amendment for the first time defined national citizenship and threw the protection of the federal government around individual rights likely to be invaded by the states. Not all actions by the states with regard to their citizens were proscribed, however, as Congress was still sensitive to substantial differentiation between local and federal authority.

In the South, "Jim Crow" laws were passed, which worked to develop a separate social structure for whites and blacks, laws which provided for separate drinking fountains, bathrooms, and waiting rooms, laws which demanded separate schools and churches, and which provided for separate seating in restaurants and on buses and trains. It was these laws which Mr. Plessy was challenging by his action on the East Louisiana Railroad. It was these laws which anti-discrimination forces in public and in the Congress were eyeing with concern.

Homer Plessy challenged the law in court by suing Mr. Ferguson, president of the railroad, for violating his rights under the 14th Amendment's "equal protection" clause, which says,

No state shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States;...nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the law.

Plessy lost his case in the Louisiana courts, eventually appealing to the U.S. Supreme Court. The High Court rejected Plessy's argument that the 14th Amendment allowed him or other to sit anywhere they pleased on public transportation. The court said as long as accommodations set aside for blacks were equal to those for whites, his rights had not been violated. It was this decision which established the "separate but equal" language in court history and which would validate and codify the entire system of segregation throughout the South. The doctrine of "separate but equal," while it would last for 60 years, would nevertheless define not only the resistance to integration, but it would focus the argument for the attack against it on the southern school system, where the greatest damage of such a policy was to be seen.

Justice John M. Harlan, the court's lone dissenter in Plessy, declared the ruling "...quite as pernicious as the decision made...in the Dred Scott case." In Dred Scott, the court relied upon its long-held understanding of "original intent," the doctrine which supposedly relied upon the intent of the framers of the Constitution at the time of its formulation. It was understood from this, that blacks had been deliberately excluded from the protection of the Constitution. The compromise which had been required to obtain approval of the Constitution in 1787 had indeed made blacks, not citizens, but property and the "framers" of the 14th Amendment in 1868, it has been persuasively argued, did not intend to abolish official segregation when they proposed this amendment.

The answer closest to the truth is that what the framers of the 14th Amendment probably sought was fair treatment under the law of blacks without giving any specific thought to the system of segregation. Based upon such an interpretation, Plessy vs. Ferguson was a logical decision and the concept of "separate but equal" seemed, within the thinking of the court, to be no infringement upon the "fairness" doctrine. As stated, that thinking would last for 60 years until the reality beyond "intent" and law forced itself upon the court in 1954 with the obvious question, could separate ever be equal given the circumstances existing between the races in southern states?

In 1954, in Brown vs. Topeka Board of Education, the court would make a startling departure from more than half-a-century of legal precedent and thinking. The Brown decision will be the subject of next week's column.

An Enduring Peninsula Presence In An Exciting New Location

Monterey Jaguar, Rolls-Royce, Ferrari has just made the biggest move in its history. After a third of a century across from Lake El Estero in Monterey, we've built a brand new facility at 1711 Del Monte Blvd. in Seaside.

This new extension of the Seaside Auto Center has been designed with you, the customer, in mind. With 600 feet of frontage and two buildings totaling 24,000 square feet, we're able to better showcase the new and preowned collector cars that attract customers from around the world, and to provide you improved parts and service capabilities.

George Mahi, general sales manager, and Jim Willingham, owner

But some things never change at Monterey Jaguar, Rolls-Royce, Ferrari. For you, that means the same courtesy, professionalism and attention to your specific automotive needs. You've come to expect it, and indeed, you deserve it.

We're excited with our new, state-of-the-art facility, and the opportunity to serve you even better than before. We invite you to come out and see for yourself why the only dealership of its kind in the U.S. has just made the greatest leap forward in its history.

MONTEREY COUNTY CULTURAL COUNCIL DISTRIBUTES $107,025 IN GRANTS TO COUNTY ART ORGANIZATIONS

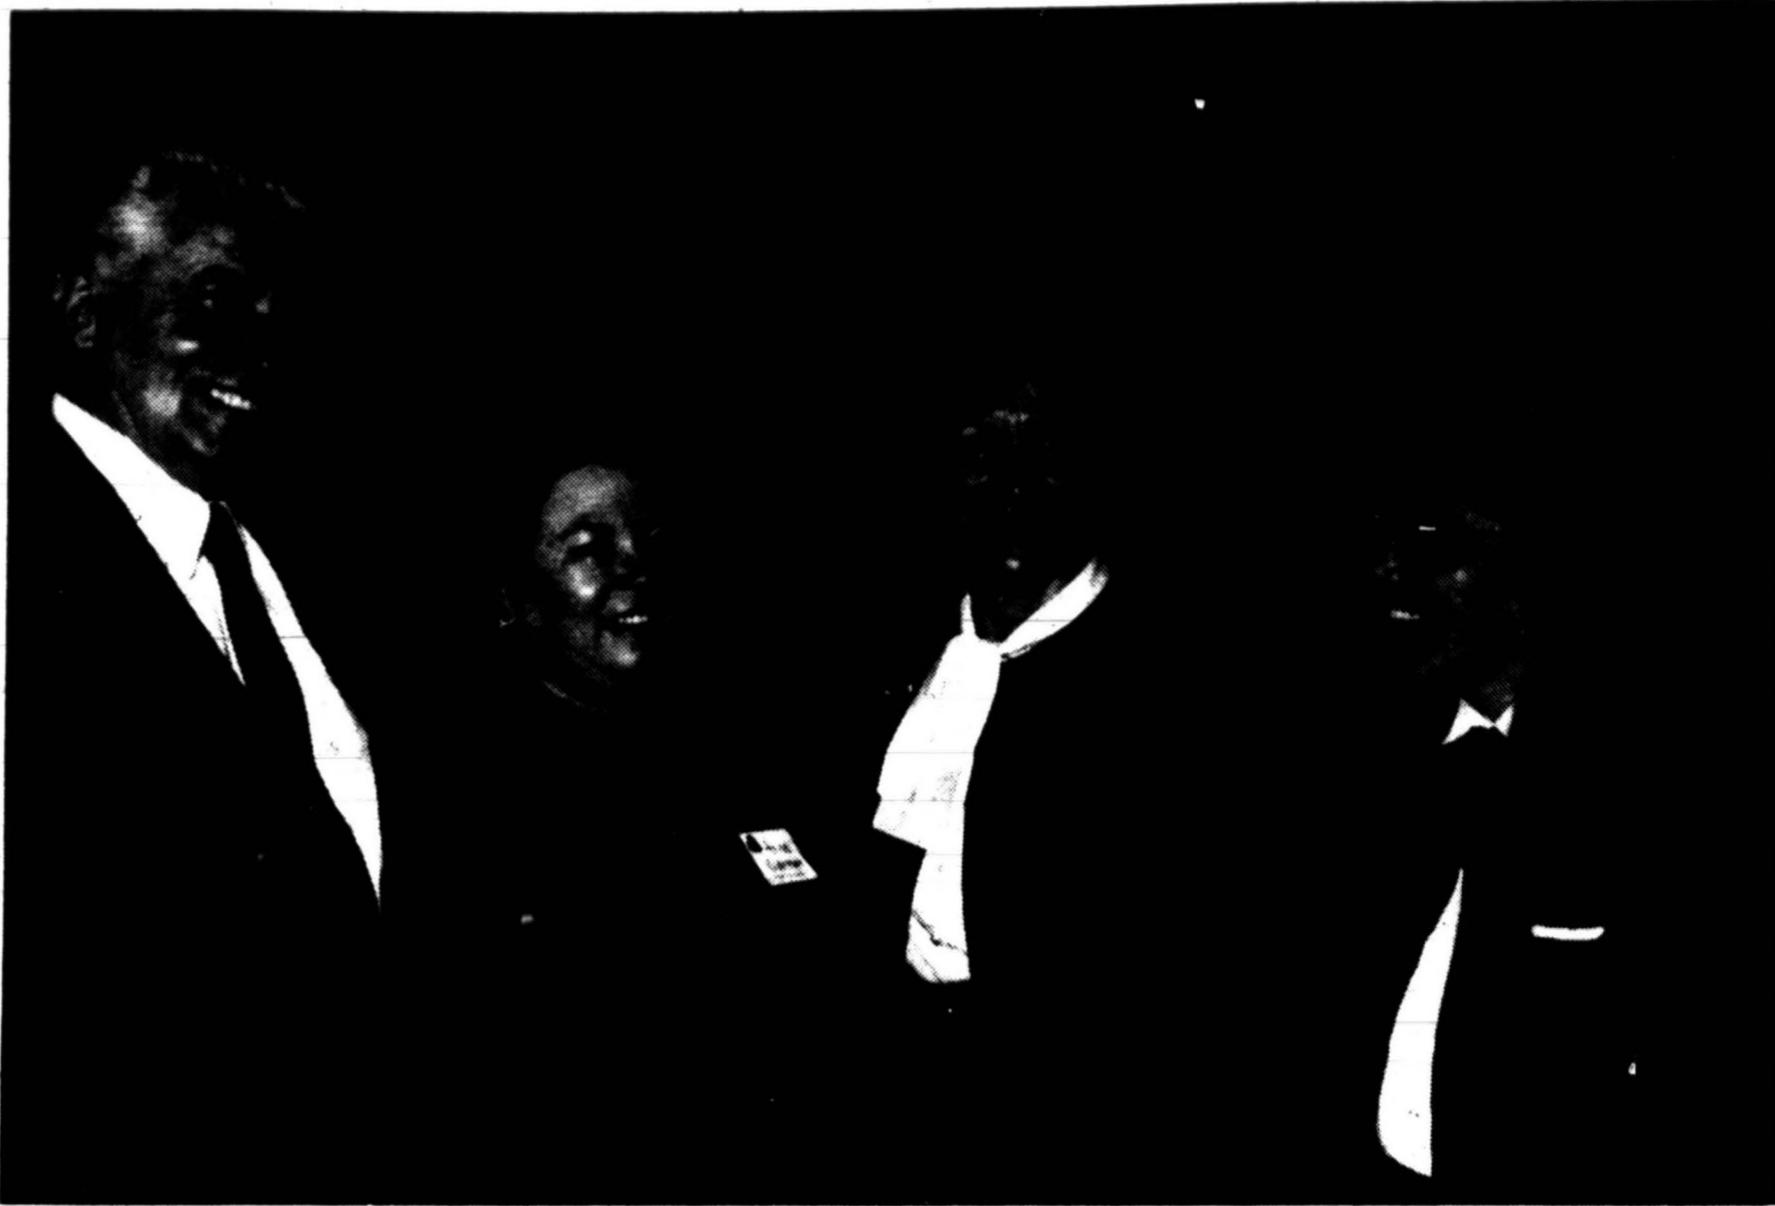

A regranting ceremony and luncheon will be held by the Monterey County Cultural Council (MCCC) Thursday, Feb. 15 at the Inn at Spanish Bay to honor those recipients of grants monies set aside by the board of supervisors for cultural organizations. This year $107,025 will be awarded to 27 art organizations representing disciplines in music, visual arts, theater, dance and publicly funded media.

Honorary chairwoman Joan Fontaine, and MCCC board president, Roderick L. Dewar will present the awards to those art organizations that successfully competed in the 1989/1990 MCCC Regranting Program. Also county supervisors Karin Strasser Kauffman, Sam P. Karas, Marc Del Piero, Dusan Petrovic, and Barbara Shipnuck will be there to honor the recipients and help in presenting these awards.

MCCC is a private, not-for-profit organization and the county designated partner of the California Arts Council. By granting monies MCCC helps support the museums, orchestras, theaters, choirs, and public radio stations that culturally enrich Monterey County.

This is the fifth year that Monterey County Cultural Council has distributed county cultural funds. Chairman for the Regranting Committee, board member George Rodman, said seven volunteer judges reviewed the applicants for grant monies and submitted these names for the 1989-1990 Regranting Awards:

BUSINESS BEAT

United we stand

THAT'S THE word from Stefan Mann's Victoria Macy, self-appointed block captain coordinator, who has taken it upon herself to, for lack of a better word, "network" Carmel residents.

Macy has broken the city down into 16 zones, with representatives from each, and has scheduled 8 a.m. Wednesday, Feb. 21, in the Terrace Room of the Pine Inn for a kick-off breakfast.

Pine Inn GM Hoby Hooker, block captain for Zone 16, will be the lead speaker and will outline his goals for the project.

And there's more.

"This being our first meeting we will get acquainted and discuss the actual concept of what a block captain is," says Macy. "Those of us with years of experience can share our successes and struggles."

Macy's goals are as follows:

- Support local businesses by organizing merchants within the community.
- Meet monthly as a block captain group and begin to share resources.
- Initiate customer referral.
- Creating a public understanding of what block captains actually do and how they benefit the community.
- Work with city in taking a survey among merchants on how the potential closing of Fort Ord would affect them.

Given the opportunity, Macy will wax poetic about her block captains.

"The flame of enthusiasm burns within each breast and needs fanning, igniting in some cases," says she. "Our village is precious with abundant opportunity for prosperity in business."

High honors for two local inns...The Carriage House Inn has been awarded the AAA Four-Diamond Award, the only inn in Carmel to receive the honor.

Owned by Inns by the Sea, the Carriage House, which has received the honor for the past 14 years, is known for its gracious amenities and romantic atmosphere.

Meanwhile, the Mobile Travel Guide has awarded Ventana in Big Sur its Four-Star rating for 1990. The Four-Star rating places the inn in the top 2 percent of the 21,000 facilities that the guide rated this year.

"This award is the culmination of a team effort," said Robert Bussinger, GM/VP. "It confirms that we've achieved what we set out to do: be understanding — worth a special trip."

Celebrating its 15th anniversary, Ventana is perched atop a 1,200-foot meadow in the middle of the Big Sur coast.

"Ventana was selected out of thousands of competitors for a Four-Star rating because its long-term commitment to quality has paid off in today's high standards," said Jack Andersen, manager of Mobil Travel Guide.

Four-Star hotels, motels, resorts and inns are known for their luxurious appointments, meticulous maintenance and outstanding service.

The annual ratings result from an annual inspection process begun by more than 100 representatives who visit every establishment using criteria developed from decades of experience.

The final rating is based on their inspections, anonymous visits, published reviews and reader input.

Carmelite shines...The editorial review board of Barrons' "Who's Who in Interior Design" has selected Carmel resident Donald E. Maxcy to be included in the publication for 1990.

Maxcy, a principal with Monterey-based Design Associates, recently completed the 3,000-square-foot Laurel Burch Gallerie in Carmel.

He currently has ongoing projects in Palm Springs, Greenwich, Conn., Chicago and New York City.

In addition, he has been invited to teach a lighting design program in San Francisco for the Illuminating Engineering Society called "Hospitality, Restaurant and Hotel Lighting."

She's back...After two years of retirement, Rita Seger has opened RSVP in Su Vecino Court.

She offers classic clothes for women in a variety of styles.

But that's not all, Seger is willing to share her advice and life knowledge with her clients.

"If someone makes a purchase of $100 or more and I happen to be in the store, I'll be happy to offer free advice on any subject from personal to business," she says.

Such a deal.

A word of thanks...The Kiwanis Club of Carmel-by-the Sea recently honored Fred Fozounmayeh, one of its most active members for 20 years of perfect attendance and exemplary service.

A 31-year Carmel resident, Fozounmayeh has been active in fund raising and offering his energies to the community. Fozounmayeh served as Kiwanis' past president and past lieutenant governor for the post.

Making sense out of the process...Environmental Review for the Lay Person, sponsored by AMBAG, Monterey, Sierra Club, League of Women Voters of the Monterey Peninsula and Monterey Bay Unified Air Pollution Control District, will take place from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, March 24, at the Monterey Conference Center.

The primary focus of the workshop is for the lay person to gain an understanding of environmental impact statements and environmental impact reports.

It is also for people who deal with the National Environmental Policy Act and the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA).

The workshop will provide an overview of the environmental review process and then address how citizens can assure that the process works effectively.

Workshop presenters include representatives from AMBAG, state Department of Fish and Game, Sierra Club, state Coastal Commission and Monterey County Flood Control and Water Conservation District.

Keynote speaker Michael H. Remy, a member of the Sacramento law firm of Remy and Thomas, specializes in environmental issues and publishes appellate court decisions.

Registration is $10, lunch $15, CEQA guidelines, $15 and NEPA guidelines $15. Checks should be made payable to AMBAG, P.O. Box 190, Monterey, CA. 93942. Phone 373-6116.

Banking news...Charissa Sopoaga, assistant vice president and branch manager of the Carmel Rancho Branch of San Francisco Federal Savings and Loan Association has appointed Peder Iverson as the branch's new operations manager.

Peder comes to the bank with 13 years of commercial banking experience.

Happy anniversary...The Carmel Veterinary Hospital on Torres Street on Feb. 23 will celebrate 30 years of treating Carmel's animal population.

Woof, woof!!!

Commercial sale...Bonny Mead Court, on Lincoln Street south of Ocean Avenue, has changed hands to the tune of $1.375 million, according to John Caldwell of Associated Brokers.

New owners Ralph and Rosalee Morgan, who own homes in the East Bay and Nevada, will occupy an apartment in the complex formerly the home of previous owners Anne and Orvalle Mead.

The sale consists of three buildings housing eight commercial spaces and three apartments.

Cooper-Molera visitor center opens

The Monterey State Historic Park, Cooper-Molera Visitor Center, located on the corner of Polk and Munras in Monterey, is now open daily except Wednesdays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The Visitor Center contains displays on the history of Monterey and the Cooper family members who had an impact on early California history.

HANDS ON.

The best way to control winter energy bills.

Winter's coming so you'll probably need more light and heat. And that'll probably affect your energy bills. But if you keep your hands on all the right controls, you can actually keep your energy costs under control.

Start with your room thermostat. Turn it down to 68 degrees or lower if your health and comfort permit. And if you turn it down to 55 degrees or turn it off before bedtime, you'll save even more. Turning it off when you leave the house also saves.

Unless your dishwasher requires a higher temperature, turn the water heater down to 120 degrees — no lower. You'll see the results on your bill.

Families interested in cutting energy costs around their home should call PG&E for a Do-It-Yourself Home Energy Survey. Fill it out and send it back for analysis. You'll get lots of great energy conservation tips, too.

If you're a low-income customer, look into PG&E's new Low-Income Rate Assistance Program. If you qualify, you could get 15% off your monthly energy bill.

This winter, take control of your energy costs.

Call your local PG&E office for more energy-saving tips.

CARMEL HISTORIC SURVEY TO MEET FEB. 17

The Carmel Historical Survey's regular monthly meeting for surveyors, researchers and interested guests will be held on Saturday, Feb. 17, between 11 and 1 p.m. at the Scout House in Carmel.

Professional photographer Dolores Kaller will be on hand to present a program aimed at helping survey photographers get the best results, and will answer questions and share tips concerning survey photography.

Enid Sales, survey chairman, will update progress of the survey and will discuss reasons for accomplishing survey goals. More effective ways of restructuring the survey itself will be explained and volunteers should bring their orange assignment sheet for discussion and possible reassignment.

All interested persons not yet signed up are urged to attend to find out about this important volunteer undertaking and to ask about or share information about properties and people from the early days in the Carmel city limits.

Carmel Historical Survey office is located at the Flanders Mansion and volunteers are urged to make use of the workshop there to become acquainted with the maps, research material and other general information available.

EUROPE BEYOND 1992 TOPIC OF LECTURE

Dr. Philippe Schmitter, political science professor at Stanford University, will speak on "Europe Beyond 1992" at the New Forum luncheon Monday, Feb. 19, in the Lodge at Pebble Beach.

Schmitter has taught at University of Chicago, Harvard, University of Geneva and University of Zurich in Switzerland, University of Paris in France, University of Mannheim in W. Germany, University of Barcelona in Spain, and European University Institute in Florence, Italy.

His major doctoral field at University of California in Berkeley was comparative politics, and he has continued research and lecturing in that field for more than 25 years.

In his New Forum appearance, Schmitter is expected to analyze recent events in both eastern and western Europe and to discuss the likeliest developments flowing from them from now until the end of the century.

His many books and articles have been published in a number of languages in this country and Brazil, France, Italy, England, W. Germany, Norway, Japan, Argentina and Holland.

Reservations for the luncheon, which begins at noon Feb. 19, can be made by writing The New Forum, P.O. Box 22214, Carmel, or calling 625-9967.

FRENCH ALLIANCE MARDI GRAS SET FOR FEB. 27

The French Alliance of the Monterey Peninsula will hold its celebration of Mardi Gras on Tuesday, Feb. 27, at Rancho Canada starting at 7 p.m. Mmes. Glori Evert and Daniele Vagnini are co-chairpersons of the fund-raising event to benefit the local Alliance Scholarship Fund.

This joyful celebration in Carnavalesque tradition will be a costumed dinner-dance in a French cabaret atmosphere. Elizabeth Rees is in charge of decorations. Guests are invited to wear costumes or masks evoking famous characters of French literature (Tartuffe? Cyrano? Madame Bovary? Carmen? Madwoman of Chaillot? Babar? Asteryx?). There will be a costume parade and prizes for the best costumes. Marie-Therese Taylor will sing.

Cost is $25 per person for Alliance members, $30 for non-members, part of which is deductible within the limits permitted by law as a contribution to a non-profit organization. Tables of eight can be arranged. Reservations must be received no later than Tuesday, Feb. 20. For information and reservations, call 375-1155 or 625-2795.

DR. PHILLIP BUTLER TO ADDRESS GENTRAIN SOCIETY

The Gentrain Society of Monterey Peninsula College will present Dr. Phillip Butler as speaker, on Wednesday, Feb. 21, at 1:15 p.m. in the Lecture Forum.

Butler was an honor graduate in the class of 1961 at the U.S. Naval Academy. While a navy pilot in Vietnam, he was captured after the crash of his plane and began an internment that was to be one of the longest in U.S. history. Later in his Navy career, he completed a doctorate in sociology and was a professor of management at the Navy Postgraduate School.

As founder and president of Camelot Enterprises, Butler empowers people with his speaking and management seminars. Taking advantage of the lessons learned during his eight-year travail, he now teaches others how to deal with stress, disappointment and rejection — how to cope and grow as human beings.

This program is open to the public and there is no charge.

LULAC TO MEET FEB. 17

The League of United Latin American Citizens (LULAC), the oldest and largest Hispanic organization in the United States, is celebrating its 61st Anniversary on Saturday, Feb. 17.

The LULAC "Monterrey" Council will be celebrating with a buffet dinner at Casa Gutierrez Restaurant, 590 Calle Principal, Monterey, at 6:30 p.m. on Feb. 17. During the program, resolutions acknowledging LULAC's contributions to the community will be presented to the Council by elected officials.

The cost of the dinner is $10 and reservations are not required. The public is encouraged to attend.

For further information call Nancy Correa at 899-8607.

JAZZ FROM THE HEART BENEFIT FEB. 15

The second annual "Jazz from the Heart" benefit concert will be held 7:30 to 10 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 15 in the Auditorium of the Robert Down School, 14th and Pine Avenue, Pacific Grove. The concert is organized by Bill Little, minister of the Pacific Coast Church, an independent, metaphysical teaching institute.

Bob Phillips, pianist and music director of the church, said that the jazz concert and ragtime bash will feature the Monterey Peninsula Jazz Orchestra and the Monterey Vocal Jazz Ensemble. Also featured will be Kenny Stahl, flutist; "Fast Eddie" Erickson, banjo; and vocalists Laurie Hofer and Bill Allison.

Tax-deductible admission is $8 (children under 12 free). Child care will be provided. A pot-luck dinner will precede the concert at 6:30 p.m.

Additional information may be had by calling Bob Phillips at 625-1850 or the church at 372-2173.

Long Term Care

LONG TERM Care (LTC) has become an important issue not only for the elderly person, but for their families, our government, and the insurance industry.

Long Term Care means different things to different people. Not long ago LTC was primarily associated with institutionalization of the frail elderly. Today LTC involves a multiple array of health and social services with an emphasis upon community-based home care.

We will attempt to describe the various options that are available to persons who need this type of care as well as discuss related subjects such as shared housing, retirement villages, senior apartments, and adult day care. The following is a brief summary of some LTC service options:

Adult Day Care provides access to center-based recreation, meals, and therapy. Monterey County has a list of agencies that provide these services. Contact the Area Agency on Aging for assistance.

The Alzheimer's Day Care Resource Center is relatively new in Monterey County. The center provides help for the patient with Alzheimer's Disease and his or her family. This service allows the family an opportunity to have a break from caregiving, while giving attention to the needs of the person with Alzheimer's Disease.

In-Home Care enables older people to maintain a household through assistance with chore services, meal preparation, assistance with personal care, transportation, companionship services and visiting nurse services. Most elderly and their families prefer this type of care if possible over the nursing home setting. Studies show that people recover much faster from illness when in their own home.

Shared Housing involves two parties sharing a home, often with one of the persons being the homeowner. Shared housing can reduce expenses and enrich the quality of life for many people.

Retirement Villages come in many forms. Probably Sun City is one of the best known. Retirement villages are better known for social amenities rather than home health services. We have a few of these on the Monterey Peninsula.

Senior Apartments are similar to retirement villages, but rather than being individual complexes they are a single unit of apartments, but have access to a range of services. The elderly person may share meals in a common dining room and/or have her own kitchen to provide meals. The rents on these apartments are not inexpensive and vary according to what services are offered.

Institutionalized Long Term Care includes skilled nursing facilities (SNFs) commonly referred to as convalescent homes and Residential Care Facilities (RCFs). Some facilities are nonprofit and others are for-profit enterprises, and the degree of care varies depending upon the type of facility. A great deal of investigation is required when considering placement into a facility.

SNFs provide 24-hour medical supervision. These facilities provide three levels of care: skilled nursing; intermediate; and custodial care. Studies indicate that a significant percentage of people in these facilities only require custodial care.

RFEs are licensed residential care homes which provide 24-hour non-medical care and supervision. Medicare covers care in a SNF if the patient goes in as a result of an acute condition for which he/she was hospitalized. Medicare coverage is time limited with co-payments. Medicare pays only for "skilled nursing care"; it does not pay for "custodial care." Individuals who spend down their resources become eligible for Medi-Cal which covers long term care in a SNF.

Long Term Care Insurance policies are available, but vary greatly. Before purchasing a policy, take time to thoroughly evaluate the provisions. The National Association of Insurance Commissioners (NAIC) has developed a model bill for states to follow that require certain minimum standards for the provisions in insurance policies. Because the policies are expensive, they should be purchased by individuals who can afford them.

The Health Insurance Association of America (HIAA) publishes a Consumer's Guide to Long Term Care Insurance. It may be obtained by writing to HIAA, P.O. Box 4155, Washington, D.C. 20018. For more information, you may obtain help from Legal Services for Seniors or the Health Insurance Counseling and Advocacy Program (HICAP) with the Alliance on Aging. You may also write to this column for more information.

Tryouts

WELL, THE Super Bowl is history, the AT&T has come and gone — must be time for baseball!

The recent sign-ups indicate another good turnout this year, although room still remains in the program (especially in the Rookie Softball division, for girls 9 and 10). Tryouts are next, then teams will be drafted and practice for the 1990 season will begin. Opening Day will be Saturday, March 24 (details in a later column).

Tryouts are mandatory for all players this year, both new and returning, and will be held on Feb. 17 and 24 at Larson Field on Rio Road. PINTO, 10 — 11:30 a.m.; MUSTANG, 11:30 a.m. — 1 p.m.; BRONCO, 1 — 2:30 p.m.; ROOKIE and MINOR SOFTBALL, 2:30 — 4 p.m.; MAJOR SOFTBALL, 4 — 5:30 p.m. (Tryouts for PONY and COLT divisions will be held at a later date.)

Players who have not yet registered may do so at the tryouts, but should arrive a little earlier than the times listed. For more information contact Karen Huntington, player agent, at 624-5740, or the Carmel Youth Baseball message line, 625-1626.

MONTEREY COUNTY STUDENT TO PERFORM IN NORTHERN CALIFORNIA'S TOP CLASSICAL MUSIC COMPETITION

A Monterey County student will perform in the 1990 Pepsi Young Musician Awards, Northern California's premier classical music competition for teenagers. Preliminary competition is slated for Sunday, Feb. 18, at Davies Symphony Hall in San Francisco.

Violinist Julie Alexander, 17, of Carmel, who attends Robert Louis Stevenson, will audition with more than 70 of Northern California's best junior high and high school musicians in the preliminary phase of this year's competition. Jointly sponsored by the Pepsi Cola Company of San Francisco, KKHI Radio and the San Francisco Symphony, the annual event has spotlighted the area's finest young musicians for the past twenty-four years.

Finalists will be selected from three categories: Strings, Winds (includes woodwinds and brass) and Piano/Harp/Percussion (includes timpani and mallet instruments). Sunday's winners will advance to the final competition to be held Sunday, Feb. 25, at Davies Hall. First and second place finishers in the finals receive $1,500 and $500 respectively in scholarship funds from Pepsi and the estate of Julia Klumpke. The finals are open to the public.

A key resume-builder, the competition recognizes and awards performers early in their professional music careers.

Auditions will be judged by the Bay Area's leading professional musicians, including Dr. Victoria Neve, chairwoman of the San Francisco State Piano Department; Leah Sandowski, internationally recognized concert pianist; Marc Shapiro, San Francisco Symphony pianist; Robin Sutherland, San Francisco Symphony keyboardist; and Mariko Smiley, San Francisco Symphony violinist.

LINCOLN CLUB OF MONTEREY COUNTY FOUNDED

A group of local Republicans, including 29th District Assemblyman Eric Seastrand and Salinas City Councilman Bob Taylor, have announced the formation of the Lincoln Club of Monterey county, a grassroots Republican volunteer organization dedicated to fostering the principles, causes and candidates of the Republican Party in the area.

According to Alec Leach, president of the new group, "The Lincoln Club's major focus is developing a network of Republican volunteers in Monterey County who will organize precincts, register new party members and get-out-the-vote."

Andrew Russo, executive director for the newly formed club, "says the long-term goal of the Lincoln Club is "nothing less than achieving a Republican majority in Monterey County."

50 YEARS OF MEMBERSHIP HONORED BY UNIVERSITY WOMEN

Recently honored with lifetime memberships for more than 50 years of active participation in the American Association of University Women were Mary Crawford, graduate of Columbia University and member since 1937; Jean Eyre, graduate of University of Wisconsin and member since 1931; Katherine Larson, graduate of UC Berkeley and member since 1936; and Helen Shekell, graduate of University of Michigan and member since 1933.

The four women, all members of the Monterey Peninsula branch, received certificates for permanent lifetime membership in AAUW in recognition of their long-term contributions to the organization. The branch awarded the certificates at their International Relations Luncheon at the Casa Estrada on Jan. 20, which featured former DLI instructor Kamil Said speaking on "Islam Today."

HIV/AIDS AWARENESS WEEK POSTER CONTEST AWARDS

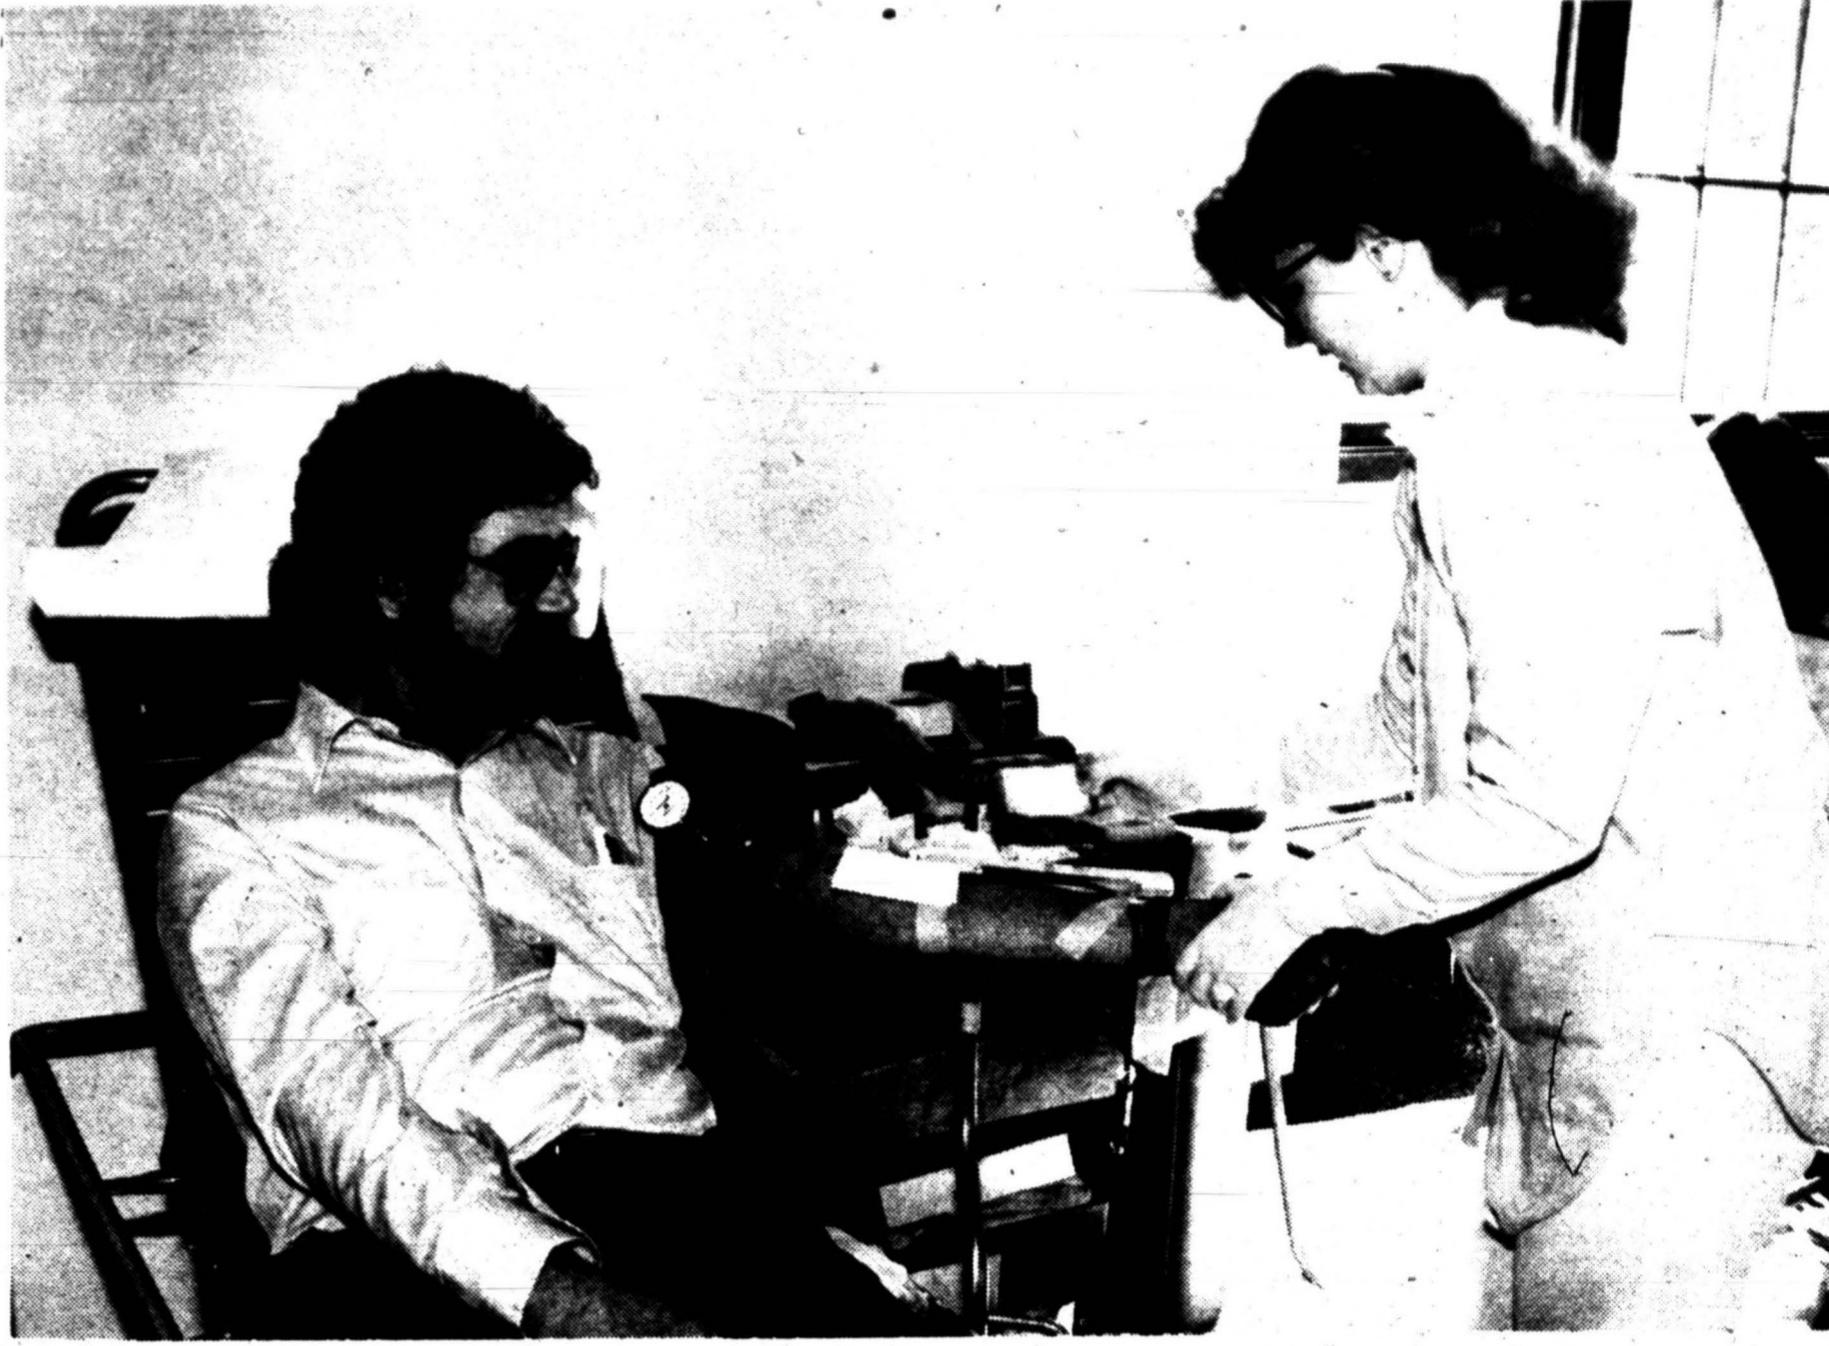

To observe HIV/AIDS Awareness Week, Feb. 18-25, the Monterey County AIDS Project in cooperation with the Catholic Diocese of Monterey and the Monterey County Office of Education has sponsored a poster contest open to all area students. This year's theme is "A Tribute to Michael," honoring Michael Pollock, tireless worker for the Monterey County AIDS Project who died last year of the disease. The poster contest was his idea. A letter which was read at his funeral was given to contest entrants for inspiration.

The contest winners will be announced Feb. 20 at 4 p.m. in the meeting room of the Seaside Branch of the Monterey County Free Libraries, 550 Harcourt, Seaside. Posters will be displayed and cash awards given to the winners. The public is cordially invited to attend this special ceremony and exhibit.

All branches of the Monterey County Free Libraries will be highlighting HIV/AIDS Awareness Week with displays, posters and free material for the public. Winning posters will

OBITUARIES

Glen G. Caddy

Cremation took place at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea, for Dr. Glen G. Caddy of Carmel Valley, a physician and former concert violinist, who died Jan. 26 at Evans Residential Care Home in Carmel Valley. She was 92.

Born Jan. 25, 1898, in Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada, she played violin with the Toronto Philharmonic Orchestra and graduated from Toronto University Medical School in 1922, specializing in psychiatry and pediatrics.

Dr. Caddy moved to New York City in 1925, where she met and married Edmund H.H. Caddy, a lawyer and later dean of New York Law School.

She served as the first physician with the Bureau of Women in Industry in the administration of Franklin D. Roosevelt. In 1932 she participated in a research project with the New York State Labor Relations Board and the National Biscuit Co. which established the higher productivity of workers who were allowed breaks or rest periods, a study that resulted in the adoption of the coffee break in American industry.

Dr. Caddy practiced pediatrics until the mid-1940s, then returned to the practice of psychiatry in several New York mental institutions, including Bellevue, Brooklyn State, Methodist and Presbyterian hospitals.

She retired in the late 1970s and moved to the Monterey Peninsula in 1984, living at the Park Lane in Monterey until moving to Carmel Valley a year ago.

Dr. Caddy is survived by two sons, John Garratt of Carmel Valley and Edmund Caddy Jr. of San Francisco; a daughter, Glenna Teti of Carmel, and six grandchildren.

Inurnment was scheduled to take place in Grafton, Ontario, Canada.

A family memorial service will take place at a later date. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

Dorothy E. Skuce

A memorial service took place Jan. 31 at the First United Methodist Church in Pacific Grove, for Dorothy Earle Skuce of Pebble Beach, who died Jan. 27 at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula. She was 71.

A homemaker, Mrs. Skuce was born Sept. 21, 1918 in Montclair, N.J. She had lived in Pebble Beach since moving from Denver in 1973.

She was a member of the Monterey Peninsula Country Club, where she was active with the Women's Golf Association and served as president in 1980.

Mrs. Skuce is survived by her husband, Elmo; two sons, James Kreider of Evergreen, Colo., and Thomas Kreider of Gig Harbor, Wash.; and three daughters, Dorothy Kreider of Denver, Mary Davis of Berlin, Mass., and Helen Skidmore of Aurora, Colo.

She is also survived by two brothers, Theodore Earle of Dorset, Vt., and Francis Earle of Denver; a sister, Betty Lockwood of Northport, N.Y.; and eight grandchildren.

Cremation took place at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea with the Paul Mortuary in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests that any memorial contributions be sent to the Hospice of the Central Coast, P.O. Box 2480, Monterey 93942.

Rabun Thompson

Memorial services took place Feb. 5 at the Carmel Presbyterian Church, for Rabun Wilson Thompson of Carmel, who died Jan. 31 at Stanford Medical Center in Palo Alto. He was 64.

Born April 8, 1925, in Union Point, Ga., he had resided in Pebble Beach for 25 years before moving to Carmel recently.

After attending the University of San Francisco, he earned bachelor of science and bachelor of arts degrees from the University of Florida.

Mr. Thompson served in the U.S. Navy in World War II and during the Korean War, continuing to serve in the Naval Reserve after his retirement.

He was foreman of the Monterey County Grand Jury for 1988, past president of the Monterey Rotary Club, a board member of the Boy Scouts of America and past president of the Pacheco Club.

He was a member of Phi Kappa fraternity, the Carmel Presbyterian Church and the Monterey Chamber of Commerce.

He retired in 1987 as a senior sales representative for International Business Machines.

He is survived by two sons, Rabun W. Thompson Jr. of Pacific Grove and Bowling M. Thompson of San Francisco; a daughter, Robin Nygaard of Pasadena; his mother Margaret Lewis Thompson of Jacksonville, Fla.; and two grandchildren.

Cremation took place in the Little Chapel-by-the-Sea, with inurnment in El Carmelo Cemetery. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests that any memorial contributions be sent to the American Heart Association, the American Cancer Society or to the charity of the donor's choice.

Vera Bautz

Cremation took place at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea, for Vera Bautz of Los Laureles Lodge, who died Jan. 27 at Monterey Convalescent Hospital. She was 76.

Mrs. Bautz was born June 11, 1913, in Czechoslovakia and lived in Pacific Grove and later Carmel Valley for a total of 37 years. She once owned Los Laureles Lodge with her husband, Rudolf, who died in 1983.

She was active in the Carmel Valley Community Chapel Guild and Fidelity Club and was a longtime volunteer at their thrift shop. She also belonged to a national Czechoslovakian organization.

Survivors include a sister, Marie Roudova of Czechoslovakia and two nephews and a niece.

At her request, no services took place. Ashes were scattered at sea. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

Rose Parker

Funeral services took place for Rose Parker of Carmel, who died Jan. 28 at Monterey Convalescent Hospital. She was 92.

Mrs. Parker, a widow, was born Oct. 12, 1897, in New York and lived most of her life in Putnam County, N.Y. A homemaker, she moved to the Monterey Peninsula four years ago.

Survivors include two sons, Dr. Sydney R. Parker of Carmel and Daniel P. Parker of Saddle River, N.J., and Monterey, Mass.; a sister, Beatrice Benson of Hallandale, Fla.; four grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

Thelma Y. Ricks

Cremation took place at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea, followed by scattering of ashes at Sea, for Thelma Yvonne Ricks of Pacific Grove, a teacher with the Monterey Peninsula Unified School District, who died Jan. 29 at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula. She was 61.

Mrs. Ricks was born Dec. 18, 1928, in Redlands and had lived in Pacific Grove for 25 years. She was a graduate of the University of Redlands.

Survivors include her husband, Richard; a son, Steve Sheere of Riverside; a stepson, John David Wright of Seaside; a daughter, Stephanie McKelvey of San Jose; a stepdaughter, Donna Makaiwii of Seaside; a brother, Theron Nelson of Lafayette; her mother, Rosalie Nelson of Redlands; four grandchildren and a nephew.

Private family services were scheduled to take place at a later date. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests that any memorial contributions be sent to the donor's favorite charity.

Elizabeth Simpson

Cremation took place at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea, for Elizabeth May Simpson of Pebble Beach, a longtime real estate broker on the Monterey Peninsula, who died Jan. 27 at Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula. She was 89.

She was born Dec. 23, 1900, in San Francisco and had lived in Pebble Beach since 1955.

She was a member of the Beach and Tennis Club in Pebble Beach.

Survivors include a grandson, Jon Dalley of California; a granddaughter, Suzanne Dalley Taylor of Hillsborough; and several great-grandchildren.

At her request, no services took place. Inurnment took place in Cypress Lawn Memorial Park in Colma. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

Joseph D. Beyda

Graveside services took place Jan. 31 at Mission Memorial Park, for Joseph D. Beyda of Carmel, a retired export business manager, who died Jan. 30 at the Hospice of the Central Coast. He was 66.

Born on Nov. 18, 1923, in Cairo, Egypt, Mr. Beyda moved to Carmel in 1984 from Rockville Centre, N.Y., after retiring from a 35-year career in the textile export business.

He was a graduate of College Francais du Caire in Egypt.

Mr. Beyda was a member of the Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club and Congregation Beth Israel.

Survivors include his wife, Barbara; a son, William of Santa Clara; and two brothers, Gabriel of Rye, N.Y., and Jerry of Bangkok, Thailand.

The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests that any memorial contributions be sent to the Hospice of the Central Coast or to the Monterey County SPCA.

George H. Payne

Cremation took place under the direction of the California Cremation Society, for George Harold Payne of the Carmel area, a retired telephone engineer, who died Feb. 5 at Beverly Manor Convalescent Hospital. He was 89.

Mr. Payne was born July 24, 1900, at Barnet, Vt., and had lived in the Carmel area for 29 years, last residing at Del Mesa Carmel.

He worked for Pacific Telephone Co. in San Francisco for 38 years, retiring in 1960 and moving to the Monterey Peninsula.

Mr. Payne was a member of the Masonic Lodge.

He is survived by his wife, Frances.

At his request, no services took place. Ashes were to be scattered at sea.

Mary Taylor Dunn

Private memorial services took place at St. John's Chapel, Monterey, for Mary Taylor Dunn of Pebble Beach, who died Feb. 6 at her home. She was 90.

Born Aug. 18, 1899, in Bakersfield, Mrs. Dunn had lived in Piedmont for more than 50 years before moving to Pebble Beach 18 months ago.

She was an alumna of the Hamlin School of San Francisco and the University of California at Berkeley, and a member of the Piedmont Garden Club, Piedmont Beautification Foundation and the Claremont Country Club.

Her husband, Herbert, a prominent investment banker in San Francisco, died in 1976.

Mrs. Dunn is survived by a daughter, Mary Dunn Howden of Pebble Beach, three grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Burial was scheduled to take place in Mountain View Cemetery in Oakland with the Paul Mortuary in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests that any memorial contributions be sent to the Piedmont Beautification Foundation or the donor's favorite charity.

Knowledge of CPR could save lives

More than 70 percent of all CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation) rescues occur in the home on an individual known by the rescuer.

Statistics show that more than 650,000 people in the United States died from heart attacks in 1986 and that heart disease is the leading cause of death in Monterey County.

On the other hand CPR saves more than 250 lives a day; the more people that know CPR, the more lives that can be saved.

With that in mind the Carmel Chapter of the American Red Cross offers CPR classes monthly all year.

For more information call the Red Cross at 624-6921.

FATHER FARRELL'S WISDOM

Let my house be your house

Feb. 18, 1982

Carmel Pine Cone

Just a few blocks south of here and three blocks west of where I was born and raised, is Monterey's old Tortilla Flat where the Paisanos said "Mi casa es su casa — my house is your house." They meant it. Monterey was a place to live.

When we invite someone to cross our threshold and break our bread, we take a calculated risk. We allow another person to see our cherished possessions, our memories, our hopes and our values. We share part of our inner selves.

Today's speaker will do that and he will let us learn more about himself than he realizes. This is always risky business because it means change and sharing and neither of these is easy.

Almighty God, however, tells us to change and to share...more than that, He orders it. He tells us that all men are our brothers and that to serve him we must feed the hungry, give drink to the thirsty, clothe the naked, visit and console the lonely. He says that when we do this to the least of our brothers we do it unto Him.

Our heavenly Father asks us to unbar our door — put out the welcome mat; get involved in our neighbors' lives and help them in their quest for justice, dignity and peace. This is the prescription for happiness and the only guarantee that we will not become an endangered or extinct species.

Sixty years ago, the Paisanos on Tortilla Flat had no locks on their doors and they met you with a tin plate of frijoles and tortillas, a jug of vino rubio and no apologies. Can we bring back the good old days? We say when there's a will there's a way — In Spanish, it's more accurate and poetic 'A donde el corazon se inclina, el pie camena.' "When the heart is moved, the feet will walk." Amen.

Wild Weekend

IF YOU'RE open to having a Wild Weekend, check out NRBQ Saturday night at the Catalyst across the bay in Santa Cruz.

After 20 years and 15 albums, the East Coast-based band, often referred to as the best unknown band in the world, is getting its just due. The band just returned from a triumphant tour opening for R.E.M., recorded its first studio album in six years (Wild Weekend) on a major label (Virgin), and recorded its first-ever video. In addition, the album is getting rave reviews in national mags and newspapers. The band's live shows are legendary.

Calling this band idiosyncratic is like calling Pee Wee Herman unique. The band is just as apt to launch into Thelonious Monk's Little Rootie Tootie as Johnny Cash's Get Rhythm.

"I equate us with a stainless steel diner on a row of trashy fast-food restaurants," bearish guitarist Al Anderson told

Rolling Stone magazine recently. "You go to the franchises, you get the same thing every night. You know what you're going to order from the minute you walk in. And that's most other bands. We use fresh ingredients. We have blue plate specials. So it's fresh every night. For the audience and for us."

Breezing through a menu-full of genres, from pop ballads, zydeco and rockabilly to blues and jazz, the band's live shows are the stuff of legends. The ultimate blue-plate special with all the trimmings. In 1984 NRBQ became the first band to play the Berlin Jazz Festival, the New York Folk Festival and the Grand Ole Opry in the same year. Not only that but the band appeared on compilations reinterpreting Monk's tunes (That's the Way I Feel Now) and Walt Disney scores (Stay Awake), and John Sebastian (of the Loving Spoonfuls), hired the band to back him on the soundtrack for The Care Bears Movie. Eclectic? Naw.

A 9:30 start Saturday, Feb. 17 features openers Young Fresh Fellows. Admission is $5 advance, $6.50 at the door — a bargain price. BASS has 'em. (Scheduled opening act, The Blues Broads, featuring Angela Strehli, Marsha Ball and Lou Ann Barton, had to cancel due to illness of one of the women.)

THIS JUST in: The Academy Award nominations came in this morning at 5:30 and, as usual, there were some surprise nominations as well as some notable omissions, perhaps more so than usual this year.

Driving Miss Daisy grabbed nine nominations in toto, with Born on the Fourth of July coming in a close second with eight. Here's a rundown of the top nominations (Best Picture, Best Actor and Best Actress).

• The Big 5 (Best Picture): Driving Miss Daisy, Born on the Fourth of July, My Left Foot, Dead Poets Society, and Field of Dreams.

Of course My Left Foot is a surprise nomination, as were Dead Poets Society and Field of Dreams, but for different reasons. My Left Foot probably deserves it, the latter two are questionable, even though both were good movies. Whatever happened to Do the Right Thing and sex, lies and videotape?

• Best Actor: Tom Cruise, Born on the Fourth of July; Kenneth Branagh, Henry V; Morgan Freeman, Driving Miss Daisy; Daniel Day-Lewis, My Left Foot; and Robin Williams, Dead Poets Society.

A few surprises here: Branagh, Williams and maybe even Day-Lewis, but all well-deserved.

• Best Actress: Isabelle Adjani, Camille Claudel; Pauline Collins, Shirley Valentine; Jessica Lange, The Music Box; Michelle Pfeiffer, The Fabulous Baker Boys; and Jessica Tandy, Driving Miss Daisy.

Adjani, Collins and Lange can all be termed mild surprises. Tandy is odds-on favorite here, with Pfeiffer a strong second.

• Missing in Action: the women from Steel Magnolias (only one Best Supporting Actress nomination); Meg Ryan for When Harry Met Sally; the two Jacks, Lemmon and Nicholson (for Dad and Batman respectively); Sean Connery; Roger and Me; directors Spike Lee (Do the Right Thing), Rob Reiner (When Harry Met Sally), Paul Mazursky (Enemies, a Love Story), Phil Alden Robinson (Field of Dreams), etc., etc. It happens every year. There's usually more discussion each year on who was left out than who made it. More next week.

AT CLUBLAND: The Club of Monterey seems to be headed down the Heavy Metal path these days.

Tonight's (Thursday, Feb. 15) show features headbangers Y & T and local metal rockers Sabre. Next week (Feb. 22), The Club's Dollar Night features three, count 'em, three metalheads, Veet, Sabre and Red October. Bring earplugs.

A break in the storm will occur March 1 at the same venue when The Terry Hanck Soul Rocker Review Part II returns, this time with phenomenal Delta slide guitarist Roy Rogers and harmonica player Norton Buffalo leading the charge.

Doors open at 8 p.m., show starts at 9:30, cover's $7. The show's co-sponsored by The Club, KMBY and Sgt. Sunshine Productions. Don't miss this one.

Discerning eye, big camera capture abstracted imagery

By ANNE PAPINEAU

PHOTOGRAPHER Randy Efros got his start in the fast lane. These days he pursues his art at a more studied pace.

Efros ventured into photography via the world of racing. "My checkered past," is the

'I love the abstract. I think nature is the great abstracter. Content is nothing to me. I look for the abstract first, for form.'
— Randy Efros

artist's bemused self-description. In the early '70s, he was owner, chief mechanic and driver of a top fuel dragster, those ground-shuddering cars whose engines blow up after around four quarter-mile runs.

"During the Vietnam War, the military had an abundance of everything," he recalls.

RANDY EFROS discovered this church building during a photo trek through Utah. He continues to criss-cross the nation in search of new subjects. "I never like to "The U.S. Air Force sponsored my race cars, and they gave me a Nikon and a bag of film to document the car, plus whatever struck my fancy."

After that introduction to photography, the racer discovered "I liked it, and I knew I could do this for the rest of my life."

Efros is as good as his word. He started photographing full-time in 1979, and his skill level is such that he now leads workshops to help others cultivate a creative "eye."

The workshops, offered in Carmel Highlands, are named Wildcat because they take place at Wildcat Hill, home of the late Edward Weston. Efros conducts these three-day "photographic adventures" with Kim Weston, grandson of the master lensman.

"It's a board and batten, single-wall house, a one-room house built in the late '30s," Efros says of Wildcat Hill. "It's a great place for a workshop. Edward Weston wanted a simple life so he could focus on his work. You can see that in his son, Brett, the same way he lives a pretty spartan life."

Efros, through his love of photography, has befriended most of the Weston clan, including Kim's father, Cole. He seems to resemble Edward Weston in that he values simplicity.

WORKING WITH Kodak 8-by-10 color sheet film and a Calumet view camera, Randy Efros stalks the abstract in both city and country-scapes around the world. "It's not something I can go on 10-mile hikes with," he says of the cumbersome camera.

"When I started seriously to take pictures, my then wife got me a book of photographs by Edward Weston. They very much appealed to me, their cleanliness," he says. "Later I went to one of Cole's workshops. We sort of hit it off, and have been friends ever since."

And Efros has been a photographer ever since. An exhibit currently hanging in the Photography Gallery of the Pacific Grove Art Center documents his latest images. He has also had portfolios published and his work showcased in one-man shows in Arizona and Hawaii.

His medium is color sheet film, exposed with a bulky Calumet 8-by-10 view camera. Unlike that Nikon he used years ago, his Calumet is "not something I can go on 10-mile hikes with."

He adds, "The main reason for the big camera is the bigger negative records more — the nuances of color."

His newest work, as revealed in the art center show, is comprised chiefly of landscapes, or details of them.

"I lead a simple life. It really doesn't cost me much more to travel than to stay home. I just drive, and try to see what's new," he asserts.

Many of the Pacific Grove Art Center photos were taken since last December. Efros documents the curve of the white-washed skeleton of the Giant Dipper roller coaster in Santa Cruz, and the sun-struck underpinnings of a bridge span in Oregon. The collection also includes an up-close look at ferns, and in another moving work, the horizon of a red shingled roof meets blue sky.

"Photography is the best medium to capture real things," Efros states. "Therefore, I seldom create an artificial environment for my work, but look for beautiful forms that I know will translate well into the shape and dimensions of the photography. It takes time to master this ability."

The team of Efros and Kim Weston have led photo workshops for a full decade, but each photographer employs a different approach. While Efros' images celebrate nature in subtle color, Weston creates artificial environments, and works mostly in black and white.

"We respect each other's work, but our work is very different. He's a very meticulous printer, a great craftsman in black and white," Efros notes.

Their workshops at Wildcat Hill strive to "help people to see better, to take better pictures. We use no zone system. We're just two guys excited about what you're doing. It's kind of a little adventure. At Wildcat Hill, we don't talk about it, we do it."

Efros regards the Monterey Peninsula as his home base, but he looks forward to driv-

"NATURE IS the great abstracter" proclaims Efros. A collection of his recent color prints, including this view of a cattle chute, can be seen through March 2 at the Pacific Grove Art Center, 568 Lighthouse Ave. in Pacific Grove.

ing across the United States, to document the country border-to-border with his unwieldy camera.

"I love the abstract. I think nature is the great abstracter," he says. "Content is nothing to me. I look for the abstract first, for form. I want to do some kind of book project. My next project will be 8-by-10 Polaroid contact prints."

According to Efros, "It's fun to travel and see new things. I feel alive. The world is so fast nowadays, mostly by necessity. It's a shame. That's why I travel so much. And it's a small world in a way. I read a lot, and I hate to read about things I haven't seen."

Recent photographs by Randy Efros can be viewed through March 2 in the Photography Gallery of the Pacific Grove Art Center, 568 Lighthouse Ave. in Pacific Grove. Admission is free.

ON STAGE

84 Charing Cross Road

The Monterey Peninsula College Players will open their production of 84 Charing Cross Road on Friday, Feb. 16 at Cherry Hall in Carmel.

Nick Zanides directs the cast headed by Alice Marsh as struggling young New York writer Helene Hanff and Alan Smith as Frank Doel, proprietor of an antiquarian book store in London. Adapted by James Roose-Evans from the book by Helene Hanff, 84 Charing Cross Road is a dramatization of business letters between Hanff and Marks & Co. in London from 1949 until Doel's death 20 years later.

The business letters eventually become the means whereby Hanff and Doel share their love of good literature. Through the years, Hanff sends "care packages" to the bookstore staff to express her appreciation.

Cast members include Shelley Risko, Kate Richter, Ivan Flansburg, Randy Rock, Marilyn Smith and David Triplett.

Tickets are $8 general; $6 for students, senior citizens and the military. Reservations may be made by calling Center Stage Ticketing, 649-5561. Cherry Hall is at Guadalupe and Fourth in Carmel-by-the-Sea.

The Anniversary

The Anniversary, Bill MacIlwraith's scathing farce about English family life, opens Thursday, Feb. 15 in the SRO Theatre at Monterey Peninsula College. Mickie Mosley Moorer directs the comic production, which plays at 8 p.m. Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays through Feb. 24.

Nita Raichart plays Mum, who is thoroughly evil and glories in destroying anything that is good, kind and pure. With her warped love, she has lacerated her three sons, played by Michael Weiss, Peter Magee and Patrick McEvoy.

Sue Fishkoff and Gina Ferrari play the women who are fighting for their men.

For reservations, call the MPC box office, 646-4213, between 4 and 7:30 p.m. Wednesday through Saturday, or Center Stage Ticketing, 649-5561, Tuesday through Saturday.

Tartuffe

Continuing a performance season populated by saints and sinners, the Staff Players Repertory Company presents Moliere's Tartuffe. Banned by royal decree from the French stage following its first performance, Moliere's 17th century farce punctures religious hypocrisy.

Marcia Gambrell Hovick directs Tartuffe. The cast includes Norman Stottmeister in the title role; Jeff Heyer as the wealthy Orgon; Marianne Schaupp as his wife, Elmire; Elizabeth Klaas as the saucy Dorine; Henry Guevara as the hot-blooded Damis; Jason Bond as the calming Cleante; Jessica Stevenson and John Farmanesh as the star-crossed Mariane and Valere; Donelia Dooley as the imperious Madame Pernelle; and James Walters as the enigmatic Royal.

Final performances of Tartuffe will be staged at Carmel's Indoor Forest Theater at 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday, Feb. 15-17. The theater is located at Mountain View and Santa Rita in Carmel-by-the-Sea.

Admission is $9 general, $7 for students and senior citizens. For reservations, call 624-1531.

Collectors urged to 'Love Your Museum' in PG

ALL ARE INVITED to the Fifth Annual Love Your Museum Art and Treasures Auction, returning Friday and Saturday, Feb. 16-17 to the Pacific Grove Museum of Natural History. A wealth of collectibles will be showcased and available for purchase at the auction, which benefits the Museum Association Acquisition and Exhibition Fund.

The event is organized over two days. Refreshments that include award-winning wines supplied by the Monterey Peninsula Winery will be served at the auction, starting at 6:30 p.m. Friday. Several local restaurants will also provide treats, among them Bertolucci's, Whaling Station Inn, the Old Bathhouse, the Fishwife, Melac's, Fandango, the Gourmet Pantry and Fish and Basil.

The auction will begin promptly at 7:30 p.m. Friday at the museum. Auctioneers Dan Turrentine and Mike Tryon will alternate, explaining the qualities of the donated items. Admission to Friday's auction is $15.

The second part of the "Love Your Museum" fundraiser is the treasure sale, slated 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, also at the museum. Steve Honegger and crew will transform the room with a series of display tables for the 22 categories of items. Among the new and antique items available for purchase will be glass, pottery, fabrics, books, electronic equipment, linens, jewelry, pictures, prints and more.

The Pacific Grove Museum of Natural History is located at 165 Forest Ave. in Pacific Grove. Last summer, the Dinosaurs Alive exhibit attracted 53,000 visitors. This summer, the museum will be enlivened by a Smithsonian exhibit about bird migrations.

These extra additions to the museum program are made possible by the Pacific Grove Museum Association, a voluntary support group that raises funds through memberships and the annual auction.

Up for bid will be a dinner for two at Gerrot's Victoria House, an overnight package at the Centrella Hotel, a circa-World War I military belt buckle, Amazonian Indian fish spears and more.

Auction items can be previewed at the museum from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily through Thursday, Feb. 15; and 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Friday, Feb. 16. Admission is free to Saturday's treasure hunting sale.

For additional information, call 372-4212.

Quink sings 'a capella'

THE QUINK vocal ensemble from the Netherlands will perform Wednesday, Feb. 21 at Sunset Theater in Carmel. The Carmel Music Society presents the concert, which will include songs by Giaches de Wert, Monteverdi, Gastoldi, Scarlatti, Stradella, Manneke, Saint-Saens, Poulenc and Ravel. Tickets to the 8 p.m. concert are $20, and can be reserved through the Music Society by calling 625-9938, or at Do Re Mi, the Barnyard; Carmel Music Company or Center Stage Ticketing.

Students invited to submit artwork for AIDS poster

To observe HIV/AIDS Awareness Week, Feb. 18-25, the Monterey County AIDS Project in cooperation with the Catholic Diocese of Monterey and the Monterey County

Office of Education has sponsored a poster contest open to all area students.

This year's theme is "A Tribute to Michael," honoring Michael Pollock, tireless worker for the Monterey County AIDS Project who died last year of the disease. The poster contest was his idea. A letter which was read at his funeral was given to contest entrants for inspiration.

The contest winners will be announced at 4 p.m. Tuesday, Feb. 20 in the meeting room of the Seaside Branch of the Monterey County Free Libraries, 550 Harcourt Ave.,

Seaside. Posters will be displayed and cash awards given to the winners. The public is invited to attend this special ceremony and exhibit.

All branches of the Monterey County Free Libraries will be highlighting HIV/AIDS Awareness Week with displays, posters and free material for the public.

JAZZ TIDES

By John Detro

From boogie woogie to Beethoven

MONTEREY PENINSULA jazz artists drew a surprise role in mainland China's outreach to the San Francisco political and business communities. That's true because local pianist Bob Phillips has a nine-year-old student named Jennifer Gee-Schoon.

"She'll go on the specific job with us," Bob grinned. "Jennifer's great. She can handle everything from boogie woogie to Beethoven. What tremendous energy."

It seems that her family knows people in the Chinese Republic's consular structure. On Friday evening (2/16), Bob and selected colleagues will play throughout the annual consulate dinner given for San Francisco's leading politicians and representatives of commerce. Completing the road company: Terry Miller and his electric bass, flutist Kenny Stahl, vocalist Mary MacGregor.

"This happened suddenly," Bob added, "but we're ready. We'll break out a new peace song written by Mary and Terry."

The same tune will be premiered Thursday night (2/15) when Bob and friends help Dr. Bill Little's Pacific Coast Church put on a family-oriented jazz program at Robert Down School Auditorium in Pacific Grove.

Music From The Heart will start at 7:30 — right after an hour-long potluck supper.

Monterey Peninsula Jazz Orchestra's rhythm section will perform — Bob, Terry, trap drummer Bob Blankenship, percussionist Eric Tonn, Charlie DeWeese on guitar. Also the Monterey Vocal Jazz Ensemble (Bill Allison, Peggy Nesbitt Brown, Lauri Hofer, Lee Durley) working together and as singles. Banjo pro Ed Erickson, Miss MacGregor, and keyboardist Scott Brown complete the lineup.

Donation at the door: $8 per adult. Youngsters admitted free — and toddler care available. Dr. Bill: "Bring a potluck dish if you can and please come even if you can't do so. There's always plenty to share."

There'll be live music during the potluck too with KAZU jazz broadcaster Don Balestrieri overseeing a deejay sort of format.

THIS PLAYER'S a tenor sax summit meeting of one. Perfectly competent redmen nod and wince when his name comes up. They say things like: "I jammed with him once — Pete was kind. He let me walk away unbloody."

Pete Christlieb's seemingly bottomless technique and idea flow will be spotlighted Monday night (2/19) at the Sheraton's Monterey Bay Club. Booker Teri Waros notes that the backup trio's good enough to push him — superb pianist Dick Hindman, drummer Colin Bailey, Scott Steed on bass.

Christlieb habitually works major situations — Johnny Carson's hip house band, Quincy Jones, Billy May, Louis Bellson, Tony Bennett, Johnny Mandel sessions. And leaders feel lucky to sign him.

Pete's own jazz recording label — Bosco — has gathered four Grammy nominations. The club activates a door charge of $5 per for this date. Worth every cent and much more.

Others there: Smith and Gail Dobson (2/15), Spang-a-lang (2/16-17), Bob Phillips and Terry Miller (2/18), Jack and Ed Show (2/20), trio fronted by guitarist Dimitri Vandelllos (2/21).

Teri signals too that March highlights deserve careful attention: South American vocalist Claudia Gomez (3/3), Kenny Stahl (3/7), San Francisco singer Anne Dyer (3/8), Scotty Wright (3/15), the stylish Madeline Eastman (3/28), hot quartet of John Cortes (3/29), Roger Eddy Band (3/30-31).

Kuumbwa Jazz Center of Santa Cruz offers a most moving duo on Monday evening (2/19) — vocalist Sheila Jordan plus bassist Harvie Swartz. It's $11 per; eight o'clock kick; Center Stage Ticketing.

Deeply influenced by Bird Parker, Miss Jordan came up in Detroit with people like Barry Harris, Kenny Burrell, Tommy Flanagan. Her autobiographical blues says the music saved Sheila Jordan's life.

Swartz leads excellent New York groups. Studio colleagues have included Jim Hall, David Sanborn, Mike Stern, Steve Gadd.

On Friday night (2/16), Kuumbwa Director Tim Jackson brings his band called Real Time (reviewed here last week). Tim's a fine flutist; he and pianist Elliott Lewis contribute bright originals. Just $5 at the door.

Check it out. Neal Finn's Union Dues Big Band plays Kuumbwa on Tuesday evening (2/20). Cover of $4.

SIGHT BITES: Monterey Plaza Hotel has a fresh schedule of live music. Nightly offerings. The talent pool features Kenny Stahl, pianist Ed Mendenhall, guitarist Javier Sanchez, Bobby Phillips, Joseph Lucido's guitar, so on. Call ahead — 646-1700.

• Saxist Frank Myers has emerged as an important composer and arranger for Monterey Peninsula Jazz Orchestra. He's a man of humor, skill, integrity. Right before the season-opening January concert, it was Frank who took me aside and pointed out an error in the printed program — Monterey Peninsula College's Don Schamber was the actual arranger on a particular chart rather than the person listed. Frank couldn't concentrate properly till Don had his due. MPJO continues on Monday nights at Mission Ranch Barn.

• Studio fun. I'm slated to go back on-air Monday (2/19) at KRLM Jazz Radio (1410 AM). Slot: Monday through Friday from noon-4.

• Caught at Kuumbwa, cabaret-type vocalist Wendy Bowers said she has signed to shoot a TV pilot for ABC/Disney. The proposed series centers on moon colonists. She: "My character's recurring. Though I live in Los Angeles now, Santa Cruz always will be my spiritual home." Wendy both took training and taught at Drama Studio of London.

• The Grammy Awards will be televised from Los Angeles on Wednesday night (2/21) over CBS. Don't be surprised if Miles Davis sweeps — he'll be honored for lifetime achievement and was nominated in two instrumental categories (jazz fusion album and straight-ahead jazz). Some other nominees: Chick Corea, Andre Previn, John Patitucci, Wynton and Branford Marsalis (separate albums), Yellowjackets, Pat Metheny, Larry Carlton, Terry Lynne Carrington, Joe Sample, Ruth Brown, Willie Dixon, Memphis Slim, John Lee Hooker.

• Yoshi's in Oakland will welcome Sarah Vaughan (2/21-25).

• Kimball's of San Francisco presents wondrous pianist Dorothy Donegan in a trio context (2/21-24).

THE BOSS — Portrait of Delta blues master Robert Johnson was done by Santa Cruz artist Diana Moll. It's on cover of KUSP-FM's current program guide. Very nice touch for this Black History Month.

Use toll-free line for park reservations

There is a toll-free telephone number for making reservations at California State Parks through the MISTIX reservation system — 1-800-444-7275.

Reservations from out-of-state callers will still be made through the toll number of 1-619-452-1950.

The toll-free number is not only for state park camping reservations, but also for Hearst Castle tours.

Writers Exchange meets monthly

The Writers Exchange meets every second Tuesday from 1 to 3 p.m. at Seaside Public Library. For more information about this free program, call 375-0542.

Artists join in all-day draw

The Pacific Grove Art Center, 568 Lighthouse Ave. in Pacific Grove, provides the setting for all-day art draws the first Saturday of each month.

Artists in all media and skill levels are invited to work at the center for all or part of the day. They will share the cost of professional art models and work independently at easels and tables provided by the center. There is a potluck lunch for those who wish to participate.

The fee is $16 for the day or $9 for half a day, with draw hours set 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. the first Saturday of each month.

For details, call 649-4657 or 375-2208.

Consider walking the Big Sur Marathon

A second walk has been added this year to the Big Sur International Marathon, it was announced by Ellie Spier, walk director.

"There will be two walking segments," Spier said. "One will be seven miles and the other 10 miles. Both will start at the Little Sur River."

Both the marathon and walks, set for April 29, will be along Highway 1 (Big Sur Highway).

The seven-mile walk will end at Garrapata Creek and the 10-mile walk will end at Soberanes Point, according to Spier. The two walks are limited to a total of 1,000 entrants.

Entry forms will be available Feb. 20 and can be obtained by sending a self-addressed stamped envelope to P.O. Box 222620, Carmel, CA 93922-2620. No telephone entries will be accepted.

PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF: BETH KNOX, aka BETH TRITCHKOV, aka BETH KNOX TRITCHKOV

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of Beth Knox, aka Beth Tritchkov, aka Beth Knox Tritchkov.

A PETITION has been filed by THELMA BECK in the Superior Court of California, County of Monterey.

THE PETITION requests that Thelma Beck be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the deceased.

THE PETITION requests the decedent's WILL and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on March 2, 1990 at 9:30 AM, located at 1200 Aquajito Road, Monterey, Ca. 93940, Monterey Branch.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in section 9100 of the California Probate Code. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a formal Request for Special Notice of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in section 1250 of the California Probate Code. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA CITY COUNCIL ORDINANCE NO. 90-02

AN ORDINANCE AMENDING CHAPTERS 12 AND 22 OF TITLE 17 OF THE MUNICIPAL CODE IMPLEMENTING DESIGN AND LAND USE REVISIONS FOR THE R-4 MULTIFAMILY RESIDENTIAL LAND USE DISTRICT

WHEREAS, the purpose of the R-4 District is to provide for multifamily residential uses; and

WHEREAS, this district also serves the residential communities of the City by providing small scale, local-serving commercial uses within existing commercial structures; and

WHEREAS, this district is intended to serve as a transitional zone between the more intense commercial districts and the less intense R-1 District; and

WHEREAS, existing district standards do not achieve these objectives because the design standards are inappropriate for creating a pleasant living environment for residential development, and commercial uses are classified as nonconforming; and

Section Three. Violations. Any person, or firm or corporation, whether as principal or agent, employed or otherwise, violating or causing or permitting the violation of the provisions of this ordinance is guilty of an infraction. Any land use or design established or altered in any manner contrary to the provisions of this ordinance is hereby declared to be unlawful and a public nuisance and the City Attorney shall, upon order of the City Council, immediately commence action for the abatement or removal thereof.

Should any person, firm, or corporation violate the terms of this ordinance and any action is authorized by the City Council or the City Attorney or is in fact filed for said violations, no other action shall be taken on any application filed by or on behalf of said person, firm or corporation until the litigation has been resolved.

Section Four. Severability.

WHEREAS, by correcting these inconsistencies through adoption of improved design standards and land use regulations, the purposes of the General Plan will be implemented; and

WHEREAS, the Planning Commission and the City Council have conducted public hearings on these amendments; and

WHEREAS, the City Council has determined that this ordinance is consistent with the General Plan and will promote the health, safety and welfare of the City; and

WHEREAS, an Environmental Impact Report on R-4 alternatives was certified consistent with the requirements of the California Environmental Quality Act.

NOW, THEREFORE, THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA DOES ORDER AS FOLLOWS:

Section One. The full and complete text of Chapter 17.12 shall be amended and replaced as shown in Exhibit "B" attached hereto.

Section Two. The full and complete text of Chapter 17.22 shall be amended and replaced as shown in Exhibit "C" attached hereto.

Section Three. Violations. Any person, or firm or corporation, whether as principal or agent, employed or otherwise, violating or causing or permitting the violation of the provisions of this ordinance is guilty of an infraction.

Any land use or design established or altered in any manner contrary to the provisions of this ordinance is hereby declared to be unlawful and a public nuisance and the City Attorney shall, upon order of the City Council, immediately commence action for the abatement or removal thereof.

Should any person, firm, or corporation violate the terms of this ordinance and any action is authorized by the City Council or the City Attorney or is in fact filed for said violations, no other action shall be taken on any application filed by or on behalf of said person, firm or corporation until the litigation has been resolved.

Section Four. Severability.

any part of this ordinance is found to be unenforceable, such finding shall not affect the enforceability of any other part.

Section Five. Effective Date. The ordinance shall take effect 30 days after final adoption. Pending applications not yet acted upon shall be reviewed under the terms of this ordinance. Any application approved prior to the adoption of this ordinance shall be allowed to continue through normal permit processes and project completion.

PASSED AND ADOPTED by the City Council of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea this 6th day of February, 1990, by the following roll call vote:

AYES: COUNCIL MEMBERS: Fischer, Laiolo, White, Wright, Grace

NOES: COUNCIL MEMBERS: None

ENJOY PEBBLE BEACH elegance with a Carmel address! Entertain in style, put your guests up in the separate guest house, park your cars in the two car garage, pamper yourself in the spacious master bath, spread your things out in the big walk-in closet, store all your worldly goods in the abundant storage space...do all the things you CAN'T do in a Carmel cottage! This is a new home with ocean views, on an oversized lot, two blocks from Carmel beach and a short stroll to the Village. The price of $1,295,000 includes all the furnishings. Go for the gusto. This is the best Carmel has to offer!

BACK ON THE MARKET

Sale fell through on this fixer-upper in a choice Hatton Fields location. This home has a huge potential, and it sits on a three-quarter acre parcel with well established landscaping and beautiful oak trees. Best of all, the owners will carry a first trust deed at 10% interest with 25% down. There's much to be done here, but when you're finished you'll have a million dollar property. $610,000.

EVERYTHING YOU NEED

THE MOST CHARMING, the most private home in all Carmel! Built in the 1920s as a golf getaway, this home has recently been updated, with new wiring, new plumbing, new heating, new roof, new bath and new kitchen. A flight of steps leads down to a big deck overlooking a wooded glen through which a pretty brook meanders. Next to it, a captivating cottage, just one room with everything you need. Bleached, knotty pine floors, fireplace, kitchen with tiled counters, and a dining nook that turns into a bed. A one-of-a-kind jewel, with good expansion possibilities. $325,000.

A TUDOR ESTATE IN PEBBLE BEACH

AN IMPOSING two-story home of Tudor design on the 17-Mile Drive, in the heart of the Pebble Beach estate area, within walking distance of The Lodge, Beach Club, and the ocean. Set off by a curving driveway and a lush green lawn, the home has been remodeled and redecorated, but even so it retains its Old World features, such as leaded glass windows, curving staircase, bay windows, and high ceilings. There are two comfortable guest quarters, one detached and the other over the garage. The lot is over an acre and one half in size, with some of the prettiest oak trees you have ever seen. An incredible offering at $1,850,000.

Big Sur Pine Ridge Trail closed

Hikers of the Big Sur will find the trailhead to one of their favorite trails closed this year. The Pine Ridge Trailhead will remain closed approximately three years during construction work on a new headquarters building for state parks, the U.S. Forest Service, and the California Department of Transportation.

The trailhead closure has resulted in attempts by many hikers to access the trail through the campground of Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park. This access route is prohibited because it is disruptive to campers.

Information on alternative routes is available from the Big Sur State Parks District Office, 667-2316, and from the Monterey Ranger District Office of the U.S. Forest Service, 385-5434.

Carmel Point Home

Everything you've ever wanted in a Carmel Point home is reflected in "Rio Casita," beautifully designed by Michael Bolton and quality-remodeled by Brian Groza. On a quiet lane, steps from the beach, this romantic residence is secluded behind plaster & stone walls and Carmel-stone courtyard. Stunningly remodeled to reflect its 75-year old history with modern day ambiance, you'll enjoy such features as the carriage room converted to the formal dining room, and the retaining of original paneled walls, the staircase, open-beam ceilings and wood-paneled windows. The interior is light, open and charming with oversized French doors in every room leading to gardens or verandas overlooking views of the mountains & Bird Sanctuary. Outstanding features include 3 fireplaces, the family room opening to a gourmet-style kitchen with marble counters, maple cabinets & Carmel stone walls, a formal step-down living room, 3 bedrooms & 2½ baths with marble floors & custom fixtures. The cream-colored walls & white ceilings blend with the natural-colored marble floors and wool carpeting. The exterior is enchanting with landscaped gardens, Carmel-stone accents, walkways & patios. And there are even antique carriage lamps to light your way home. $1,100,000.

A statement of casual sophistication is made by this extraordinary home. One block to the ocean, this sea-view home features dramatic open-beam cathedral ceilings, open spaces & masterful use of windows, French doors & landscaping. Two bedrooms, 2-1/2 baths, a formal dining room, an exciting kitchen & spacious living areas are accented by a south-facing brick patio which adds gracious flow to the home. Three fireplaces invoke feelings of warmth in sitting areas. $1,300,000. 625-4111.

CARMEL VALLEY

A MUST SEE 20-ACRE PROPERTY!

A quality-built main house reflects charm & taste with its rock fireplace and floor-to-ceiling bookcases in the living room, country kitchen with dining area, 2 bedrooms & 2 baths. The nearby guest house is gorgeous. Offering great space & privacy with a serene atmosphere, there is plenty of room for a tennis court, pool, spa, gardens and barns. Lot of great possibilities in an area not yet discovered! Only 23 miles from Highway 1, a short distance off C.V. Road. $298,000. 625-0300.

GORGEous VIEWS!

Well sited on a sunshine-filled acre high above the Village is this unique contemporary home capturing breathtaking views of the valley from the major living areas, including the living & dining rooms, kitchen, master bedroom & 2nd bedroom. Outstanding features include 3 bedrooms, 3 baths den and an open floor plan enhanced by the generous use of Saltillo tile & marble. You will be able to be warm & comfortable by the fireplace or bask in the sunshine on 1 of 4 decks. $565,000. 655-0300.

NEAR QUAIL LODGE! RESORT!

A warm & inviting, dramatically-decorated 3-bedroom, 2-bath home on a large, low maintenance lot. The wood & beveled-glass main door allows natural light to filter over the tiled entry. Features include a Carmel-stone fireplace in the spacious step-down living room with skylights, white-washed vaulted & beamed ceiling, a formal dining room & skylit breakfast area in the light & bright kitchen with top storage. 625-0300. $495,000.

TIERRA GRANDE HOME!

Just listed, a 4-bedroom, 3-bath spacious quality-built home located high on an oak-studded acre near Mid-Valley. Panoramic valley and ocean views framed between mountains combine to make this a wonderful property to own and enjoy. The rooms are generous sized, and the windows are oversized bringing the views and light indoors. The dramatically designed living & dining rooms have dark wood walls and lofty, cathedral ceilings. There are 3 stone fireplaces, a wine cellar, wet bar, laundry room, central vacuum & intercom systems. $525,000. 647-7494.

VIEWS, ACREAGE & HOME!

Looking for a wonderful retreat offering privacy, lovely valley views with room for horses near Carmel Village? Well located on 16-1/2 acres (2 legal lots of record) with Carmel Valley Road access, a beamed-ceiling 3-bedroom redwood home offering southern exposure. There's a spacious view deck on level-to-sloping acreage, a Butler barn, stalls, paddock & horse arena. Cal-Am water. $695,000. 625-4111.

PEBBLE BEACH

CHARMING COUNTRY CLUB HOME!

A handsome Carmel-stone fireplace and open-beam ceilings enhance the living room of this home with its wonderful, completely new gourmet kitchen. There's a dining area off the living room, and a family area off the country-style kitchen as well as a pantry & laundry room. Three bedrooms and 2 baths complete the interior of this home. Outside, newly landscaped grounds are lovely and there is a rose garden in the lovely rear yard with patio. $495,000. 625-4111.

SPYGLASS VIEWS!

A well-maintained residence overlooking the 14th tee and 13th green of Spyglass Hill Golf Course. A large step-down living room with fireplace is off the tiled entry, and off the kitchen a second fireplace warms a delightful family room with its own private patio. Two bedrooms and 2 baths complete this attractive one-level home. Natural landscaping and sprinkler system. $395,000. 625-4111.

NEW ON THE MARKET!

This 4-bedroom, 2-1/2 bath home with its large windows is probably the best buy in the Country Club area! Close to schools & shopping, it is located within golf cart distance to Monterey Peninsula Country Club & Spanish Bay courses. Large family room features a brick fireplace & wet bar and has sliding glass doors opening onto spacious decking with hot tub & fenced rear yard. There is a formal dining room, breakfast area in the kitchen, and a bonus utility room. Across from greenbelt! $459,900. 625-0300.

NEARING COMPLETION!

A brand-new 3-bedroom, 2-1/2-bath home with outlook through towering pines towards Monterey Bay. All rooms are on the main floor except the 25'-by-17' recreation room on the lower level. Outstanding features are the cathedral ceiling and marble trimmed fireplace in the living room which opens onto large deck, large master suite with see-through fireplace, dressing area, tiled garden tub and huge closet. Island kitchen with breakfast sun room and a formal dining room. Scheduled for March completion. $597,000. 647-7494.

OUTSTANDING ESTATE HOME!

Extraordinary craftsmanship & design are the underlying theme of this home on 1.2 acres in the heart of the Forest. The dramatic scale of the home is obvious in the attractive foyer, gracious living room, formal dining room & particularly in the "great room" family room. There are 4 fireplaces, a den, 4-bedrooms & 2-1/2 baths. Special features include an exercise-spa room, wine cellar, sauna, gourmet kitchen with center island & breakfast room. Landscaped & fully fenced with electric gates, there is a spectacular pool-patio area plus guest suite above the 4-car garage! $2,400,000. 647-7494.
